Contesting The Master Narrative:

Contesting the Master Narrative Jeffrey Cox, Shelton Stromquist, 1998 Social historians today are calling into question the persuasiveness of the master narratives that have dominated our stories about the past. Motivated now by personal and professional commitments to solving problems by telling stories not by epistemological and ontological certitude social historians are constructing alternative narratives relevant to an expanded more inclusive audience. The essays in this thoughtful volume reflect an explicit self consciousness about historians choices of narrative strategies a new skepticism of the rhetorical strategies embedded in all scholarly arguments and a recognition that every historian has a point of view. Critically examining past master narratives in light of emerging alternatives these essayists ask us to reevaluate the stories we tell the narrative traditions within which they are situated and the audiences they are designed to persuade. The first essays explore the gendered character of social history rhetoric by exposing alternative feminist traditions of social scientific and social historical writing. The second section focuses on alternative narrative traditions of historical writing in non European contexts specifically India Japan and China. And the third group spotlights the rhetorical uses of synthesis in the writings of social historians. The essays feature the range of narrative possibilities available to historians who have become self critical about the pervasive use of unexamined master narratives they show how limited that tradition can be compared with the diverse alternatives derived from for example gendered traditions of Latin American travel writers of the nineteenth century Victorian women s historical writing or the lively subaltern tradition in Indian social history. Together they argue not for the abandonment of historical materialism or the elimination of all master narratives but for the reinvigoration of social history through the use of new and more persuasive arguments based on alternative narratives.

Challenging the Master Narrative René Clark, 2000 Damaged Identities, Narrative Repair Hilde Lindemann, 2001 The nature of identity especially of groups such as Gypsies mothers nurses and transsexuals is explored by comparing the stories these groups express of themselves against the narratives written about them. Feminist Academic Press Hilde Lindemann Nelson focuses on the stories of groups of people including Gypsies mothers nurses and transsexuals whose identities have been defined by those with the power to speak for them and to constrain the scope of their actions. By placing their stories side by side with narratives about the groups in question Nelson arrives at some important insights regarding the nature of identity. She regards personal identity as consisting not only of how people view themselves but also of how others view them. These perceptions combine to shape the person s field of action. If a dominant group constructs the identities of certain people through socially shared narratives that mark them as morally subnormal those who bear the damaged identity cannot exercise their moral agency freely. Nelson identifies two kinds of damage inflicted on identities by abusive group relations one kind deprives individuals of important social goods and the other deprives them of self respect. To intervene in the production of either kind of damage Nelson develops the counterstory a strategy of resistance that allows the identity to be narratively repaired and so restores the person to full membership in the social and moral community By attending to the power dynamics that constrict agency Damaged Identities Narrative Repair augments the narrative approaches of ethicists such as Alasdair MacIntyre Martha Nussbaum Richard Rorty and Charles Taylor

Contesting the Monument Ruth Glynn,2005 In the second half of the twentieth century the Italian historical novel provided an unrivalled number of best sellers and publishing phenomena The success of the genre is closely related to a more general interest in revisiting the past in the light of a changed understanding of the nature or philosophy of history This study aims to explore the particularly marked increase in the production and popularity of the historical novel in the period between the mid 1960s and the early 1990s with reference to current debates on the nature of history It presents a theoretical framework which establishes the centrality of philosophy of history to the development of the genre The employment of this framework opens out the discussion of literary change to the consideration of historiographical developments and wider critical debate The theoretical insights gained inform the close textual analysis provided in the chapters dealing with novels written by five of Italy s foremost contemporary writers Leonardo Sciascia Vincenzo Consolo Sebastiano Vassalli Umberto Eco and Luigi Malerba
