Curriculum Charles Bazerman, Joseph Little, 2005-07-04 This reference guide traces the writing across the curriculum movement from its origins in British secondary education through its flourishing in American higher education and extension to American primary and secondary education

Assignments across the Curriculum Dan Melzer, 2014-05-15 In Assignments across the Curriculum Dan Melzer analyzes the rhetorical features and genres of writing assignments through the writing to learn and writing in the disciplines perspectives Presenting the results of his study of 2 101 writing assignments from undergraduate courses in the natural sciences social sciences business and humanities in 100 postsecondary institutions in the United States Assignments across the Curriculum is unique in its cross institutional breadth and its focus on writing assignments The results provide a panoramic view of college writing in the United States Melzer s framework begins with the rhetorical situations of the assignments the purposes and audiences and broadens to include the assignments genres and discourse community contexts Among his conclusions is that courses connected to a writing across the curriculum WAC initiative ask students to write more often in a greater variety of genres and for a greater variety of purposes and audiences than non WAC courses do making a compelling case for the influence of the WAC movement Melzer s work also reveals patterns in the rhetorical situations genres and discourse communities of college writing in the United States These larger patterns are of interest to WAC practitioners working with faculty across disciplines to writing center coordinators and tutors working with students who bring assignments from a variety of fields to composition program administrators to first year writing instructors interested in preparing students for college writing and to high school teachers attempting to bridge the gap between high school and college writing

Rhetorical Strategies and Genre Conventions in Literary Studies Laura Wilder, 2012-05-31 Laura Wilder fills a gap in the scholarship on writing in the disciplines and writing across the curriculum with this thorough study of the intersections between scholarly literary criticism and undergraduate writing in introductory literature courses Rhetorical Strategies and Genre Conventions in Literary Studies is the first examination of rhetorical practice in the research and teaching of literary study and a detailed assessment of the ethics and efficacy of explicit instruction in the rhetorical strategies and genre conventions of the discipline Using rhetorical analysis ethnographic observation and individual interviews Wilder demonstrates how rhetorical conventions play a central although largely tacit role in the teaching of literature and the evaluation of student writing Wilder follows a group of literature majors and details their experiences Some students received experimental explicit instruction in the special topoi while others received more traditional implicit instruction Arguing explicit instruction in disciplinary conventions has the potential to help underprepared students Wilder explores how this kind of instruction may be incorporated into literature courses without being overly reductive Taking into consideration student perspectives Wilder makes a bold case for expanding the focus of research in writing in the disciplines and writing across the curriculum in order to grasp the full complexity of disciplinary discourse
