

Langue vs Parole

- Langue is a concrete and fixed set of grammatical rules and social conventions that are abided and practiced by a community of speakers
- It is not controlled by an individual speaker and is an independent system.
- We have to learn and assimilate langue and it takes some time.
- Langue constitutes a historical whole.
- Parole is the independent act of speaking.
- It is completely controlled by the speaker and is an intellectual activity.
- Parole depends upon Langue for communication. You need to abide by the rules of langue when you speak to be understood.
- Parole exists only in the present. It does not account for the past.
