Abstraction In Avant Garde Films:

Abstraction in Avant-garde Films Maureen Cheryn Turim, 1985 Avant-garde Film Michael O'Pray, 2003 Annotation
Few aspects of American military history have been as vigorously debated as Harry Truman's decision to use atomic bombs against Japan. In this carefully crafted volume, Michael Kort describes the wartime circumstances and thinking that form the context for the decision to use these weapons, surveys the major debates related to that decision, and provides a comprehensive collection of key primary source documents that illuminate the behavior of the United States and Japan during the closing days of World War II. Kort opens with a summary of the debate over Hiroshima as it has evolved since 1945. He then provides a historical overview of the events in question, beginning with the decision and program to build the atomic bomb. Detailing the sequence of events leading to Japan's surrender, he revisits the decisive battles of the Pacific War and the motivations of American and Japanese leaders. Finally, Kort examines ten key issues in the discussion of Hiroshima and guides readers to relevant primary source documents, scholarly books, and articles.

Abstract Film and Beyond Malcolm Le Grice, 1981
Malcolm Le Grice, an important experimental filmmaker from England, film journalist for Studio International, and teacher, gives us a lucid account, both historical and theoretical, of the main preoccupations of abstract filmmakers. Le Grice begins with a painter, Cézanne, to show how his preoccupation with pictorial space is a key to any understanding of the notion of abstraction. He goes on to discuss the Futurists' cinema, the early abstract film experiments by Eggeling, Duchamp, and others in Germany and France of the 20s, the West Coast filmmakers of the 40s, and a stimulating view of the experimental film movement after WW II, including the works of Brakhage, Snow, Gidal, and Sharits. Art Direction: Whether or not one agrees with Le Grice's valuation of an alternate cinema, Abstract Film and Beyond clearly demonstrates that the cinema of the great twentieth century is not mere entertainment but an event of tremendous importance and implication. The Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism

The Performance of Trauma in Moving Image Art Dirk Cornelis de Bruyn, 2014-10-02
With reference to recent neurological research into Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) using new imaging technologies and models of implicit and explicit memory systems developed from this research, The Performance of Trauma in Moving Image Art examines the capacity of an artist's cinema of experimental and avant-garde film to perform and communicate traumatic experience. De Bruyn analyses key films from the 1940s to the present that perform aspects of overwhelming experience through their approach, structure, content, and perceptual impact, mapping a trajectory from analogue to contemporary digital moving image practice. He argues for the inclusion of Peter Gidal's 1970s conception of materialist film into the genre of trauma cinema through its capacity to articulate unlocatability and perceptually perform disorientation and a flashback effect, all further identified here as key characteristics of digital moving image practice. The discussion explores the following questions: Can materialist film model traumatic memory and perform the traumatic flashback? Does the capacity to articulate trauma's unlocatability and invisibility give this practice a renewed relevance in digital media's preoccupation with surface and the impact of information overload De Bruyn's phenomenological traumatic reading of materialist film steps beyond Gidal's original anti-illusionist rationale to incorporate critiques effectively mounted against it by the founders of a 70s feminist psychoanalytic counter cinema This contemporary re-reading further re-evaluates the Minimalist turn in painting and sculpture after the Second World War arguing that this development is not essentialist or visionary but makes visible the implicit mechanisms of denial and erasure at the core of traumatic remembering For de Bruyn the initial traumatic impact of industrialization on the body's perceptual apparatus traceable through the advent of cinema and train travel is communicated by such moving image art The development of digital technology marks a new cycle of such perceptual re-balancing for which materialist film is uniquely positioned and which it critically addresses

Lovers of Cinema Jan-Christopher Horak, 1995. Marshaling his broad cinematic and cultural knowledge, editor Jan-Christopher Horak has compiled in Lovers of Cinema a groundbreaking group of articles on this neglected film period. With one exception, all are original to this volume, and many are the first to treat comprehensively such early filmmakers as Mary Ellen Bute, Theodore Huff, and Douglass Crockwell. Also included in the book is a listing of all American avant-garde films produced in the years before World War II, as well as a bibliography of the most relevant criticism literature and news accounts.

The Avant-Garde Feature Film William E.B. Verrone, 2011-11-08. Here is a critical and historical overview of unconventional and aesthetically challenging films, all of feature length. The author focuses on the particular forms of contemporary avant-garde films, which often rely on characteristics associated with historical films of the same genre. Included are works by such visionary filmmakers as David Lynch, Luis Bunuel, Jean Cocteau, Jean-Luc Godard, Guy Maddin, and Derek Jarman. The first of the two appendices contains a filmography of key avant-garde feature films from Haxan, Witchcraft Through the Ages (1922), to Maximum Shame (2010). The second appendix offers a brief list of directors who have made significant contributions to films that take alternative approaches to cinematic practice, establishing new grounds for analysis and evaluation.
