Barbarous Philosophers Christopher Coker, 2010 From Heraclitus in the sixth century B C E to the twentieth century philosopher physicist Werner Heisenberg intellectuals have struggled to make sense of war and its presence in human society Yet Christopher Coker contends that philosophers are the ones who created the concept of war largely by defining its rules and establishing an oppositional dialectic of peace The Greeks were the first to outline what Blaise Pascal called the rules of war and through their description of its nature influenced the thinking of contemporary generals and military strategy Nevertheless Coker's book focuses less on the philosophical underpinnings of war and more on the particular problems we face while fighting war today Guided by the work of sixteen major thinkers it examines several paradoxes of combat the belief that war is a continuation rather than a negation of politics by other means the idea that we should respect those who don't respect us the notion that war can help a soldier reaffirm his humanity and the odd fact that the concept of peace is still contested Coker draws on the work of philosophers who have tackled war directly and intensely in their writing Each chapter begins with an epigram distilling the essence of a chosen philosopher's thinking on war and uses it as a prism through which to analyze aspects of war most relevant to contemporary combat
