Astin, 1985-04-30     A Culture for Academic Excellence Jan E. Freed, Marie R. Klugman, Jonathon D. Fife, 1997 This report provides a comprehensive review of quality principles in higher education and proposes that when used holistically and systematically the quality principles also known as total quality management and continuous quality improvement can create a culture for academic excellence After an introduction the first section explains the historical significance of the quality movement in relationship to business and industry Next the report defines quality as it relates to higher education institutions and then describes how the quality movement has evolved among postsecondary institutions The components of an institutional culture are identified ways to build a culture that supports the quality principles suggested and each of the quality principles briefly explained Stressed is the need for a change in thinking as a prerequisite to initiating the quality approach on a campus The following eight sections present the eight principles or characteristics of effective organizations in detail They are 1 vision mission and outcomes driven 2 systems dependent 3 systematic individual development 4 decisions based on fact 5 delegation of decision making 6 collaboration 7 planning for change and 8 creative and supportive leadership The final section integrates lessons learned from practitioners committed to the quality principles     World University Rankings: Statistical Issues And Possible Remedies Kay Cheng Soh, 2017-03-08 World university ranking started one and a half decades ago for the purpose of understanding what makes an excellent institution of higher education Subsequent to the appearance of the Academic Ranking of World Universities at the Shanghai Jiaotong University there soon emerged the QS World University Rankings and the Times Higher Education World University Rankings These three ranking systems are considered the classics as they are the fore runners although no less than ten new systems have come to the arena The various ranking systems adopt a common approach of weight and sum to process the indicator data Each system somewhat arbitrarily decides on a set of indicators and assigns different weights to these presumably reflecting their relative importance This simple and simplistic approach meets well common sense And in fact much of the discussion on world university rankings is conducted at the commonsensical level However analyses conducted in the recent years uncovered several problems of the prevalent approach spurious precision mutual compensation weight discrepancy indicator redundancy etc which render the overall scores and ranking suspect in terms of validity These are due to systems ignoring the fact that world university rankings are a form of social measurement and therefore need be seen from this perspective Moreover rankings encourage competition and in the highly competitive world of today it is natural that institutional attention is focused on the ranking results By now the original purpose of world university ranking seems to have been overshadowed and world university rankings look more like international academic contests as though they are annual sports meets This monograph collects together many articles pertaining to the identified measurement and statistical issues of world university rankings and suggests remedies to make ranking results more trustworthy
