

Academic Staff Development in Higher Education An Overview

The concept of a training programme for colleges/university teachers is rather new. A teacher in a university is required to take up a full load of teaching from the first day of appointment without any orientation to different aspects of the job, viz methods of teaching, preparation of lectures, methods of evaluation, conducting workshops, seminars and understanding the youth. The enthusiastic recruit is left to learn through trial and error.

The lack of training for university teachers may be due to the traditional belief that the university teacher is supposed to have mastery of the subject and if required, can upgrade/update himself/herself through his own efforts. The lack of training for university teachers was also reported by Hena Mukherjee and Jasbir S. Singh (1993) in their world study of Staff Development Approaches in Higher Education when they observed that the main emphasis of education policies of different countries at different levels of development was on expansion, but there had not been a matching increase in resources, and this led to a deterioration in the quality of higher education.

However, by the late 70s and early 80s, policy makers started realising this deterioration brought on by rapid expansion. The teacher was recognised as the key factor for improving the quality of higher education, and the teacher development started getting due attention. As a result, a number of journals and books dealing with staff development have been brought out in recent years. Carole Bland and Constance C. Schmitz (1988) conducted an extensive literature research for a twenty-year period (1965-85). They located and categorized a total of 287 faculty development publications (books, monographs, journals, articles and technical reports) in the USA, with almost half of these items published after 1980.

Meaning and Components

The term teachers' training is often used interchangeably with academic staff development. But, whereas training is concerned with skill development and is more related to technical jobs, academic staff development is concerned with acquainting the teachers with the latest methodologies of teaching and updating teachers' subject knowledge. It is concerned with constantly updating the teachers so that they can adapt themselves to the ever-changing teaching/learning needs and, at the same time, adopt new roles and responsibilities.

According to Tucker Allan (1984), faculty development refers to establishing activities and procedures that assist faculty members in acquiring knowledge, skills and attitudes that enable them to become more effective in performing all the functions related to professional academic life, viz teaching, research, curriculum development, information analysis, dissemination of knowledge through the mass media, advising, and counselling.
