Accounting And Financial Globalization:

Accounting and Financial Globalization Joshua Ronen, Joshua Livnat, 1991-08-26 This volume examines the accounting issues raised by the trend toward globalization of information in world financial markets The Impact of Globalization on International Finance and Accounting David Procházka, 2017-12-29 This proceedings volume analyzes the impact of globalization on international financial flow as well as harmonized financial reporting Featuring contributions presented at the 18th Annual Conference on Finance and Accounting held at the University of Economics in Prague this book examines the economic consequences of the globalized world in the sphere of corporate and public finance monetary systems banking financial reporting and management accounting The global perspective is accompanied by local specific cases studies including those from emerging markets In addition the combination of micro and macroeconomic approaches provide insights on the behavior of all relevant stakeholders in the process and the results of dynamic pressures surrounding global capital markets and international investments This book will serve as a useful resource for scholars and researchers practitioners and policy makers in the fields of finance economics and accounting The Routledge Companion to Financial Accounting Theory Stewart Jones, 2015-05-22 Financial accounting theory has numerous practical applications and policy implications for instance international accounting standard setters are increasingly relying on theoretical accounting concepts in the creation of new standards and corporate regulators are increasingly turning to various conceptual frameworks of accounting to guide regulation and the interpretation of accounting practices The global financial crisis has also led to a new found appreciation of the social economic and political importance of accounting concepts generally and corporate financial reporting in particular For instance the fundamentals of capital market theory i e market efficiency and measurement theory i e fair value have received widespread public and regulatory attention This comprehensive authoritative volume provides a prestige reference work which offers students academics regulators and practitioners a valuable resource containing the current scholarship and practice in the established field of financial accounting theory Financial Globalization Jason H. Cardwell, 2010 Financial globalisation refers to the ongoing integration of once poorly connected national financial markets A key aspect of globalisation is a decline in financial home bias the tendency for domestic saving to be invested predominantly at home with domestic portfolios tilted heavily toward home country assets Recent years have in fact seen a pronounced decline in home bias with a record fraction of global saving going to cross border investments Indeed in 2005 and 2006 the share of global saving invested abroad climbed past 50 percent for the first time The trend toward greater cross border investment has been world wide with the United States other advanced economies and emerging economies all investing a markedly higher fraction of saving abroad Significantly U S external investment as a share of saving has risen less dramatically than the share for other countries Comparing the mid 1990s with the middle of the current decade we see that U S outflows as a share of domestic saving have risen by roughly 20 percentage points the increase abroad has been close to 35 percentage points As a result the United States now lags the rest of the world by a considerable margin in the share of national saving invested abroad It is instructive to consider the smaller scale of outflows from the United States in light of the current account balance of payments accounting identity described earlier In particular had outflows from the United States risen in line with the global trend the country would have required that much more inward investment to finance an unchanged sequence of current account deficits In turn more robust U S demand for foreign assets and the consequent need to attract additional inflows would have placed downward pressure on the dollar leading to at least somewhat smaller deficits This scenario illustrates a more general point developments that lead to shifts in gross capital flows have important feedback effects on net flows

Global Comparability of Financial Reporting Under IFRS Francesco De Luca, Ho-Tan-Phat Phan, 2022-11-14 The globalization of financial markets worldwide has progressively pushed toward simultaneous globalization of accounting information Thus during the last 50 years categories of preparers users and regulators have devoted their efforts to support the global comparability of financial reporting aiming at favoring the comparison of corporates financial performances at a cross country level In the same vein IASB national standard setters and jurisdictions have participated in and given momentum to this process At the same time academic research has followed this process and tried to build a theoretical framework to address the related issues to assess the impact on preparers users and regulators while defining hindrances and obstacles to the comparability of financial reporting especially in an IFRS environment In this context this book reviews research studies on the comparability of financial reporting at a global level as well as highlights empirical analyses that demonstrate the extent to which global comparability has been achieved and how it enhances value relevance of earnings across countries It also looks at the cross country investors perspectives by shaping the empirical analysis to provide further insights on the role of the Big Four auditing services in enhancing the comparability of earnings The book provides an original contribution to the current debate about the comparability of financial reporting under IFRS and will be useful for researchers in the field

Financial Globalisation, Governance and the Evolution of the Home Bias Bong-Chan Kho, René M. Stulz, Francis E. Warnock, 2006 Despite the disappearance of formal barriers to international investment across countries we find that the average home bias of US investors towards the 46 countries with the largest equity markets did not fall from 1994 to 2004 when countries are equally weighted but fell when countries are weighted by market capitalisation This evidence is inconsistent with portfolio theory explanations of the home bias but is consistent with what we call the optimal insider ownership theory of the home bias Since foreign investors can only own shares not held by insiders there will be a large home bias towards countries in which insiders own large stakes in corporations Consequently for the home bias to fall substantially insider ownership has to fall in countries where it is high Poor governance leads to concentrated insider ownership so that governance improvements make it possible for corporate ownership to become more dispersed and for the home bias to fall We find that the home bias of US investors decreased the most towards countries in which the ownership by corporate insiders is low and countries in which ownership by corporate insiders fell Using firm level data for Korea we find that portfolio equity investment by foreign investors in Korean firms is inversely related to insider ownership and that the firms that attract the most foreign portfolio equity investment are large firms with dispersed ownership
