Film Criticism in the Digital Age Mattias Frey, Cecilia Sayad, 2015-04-20 Over the past decade as digital media has expanded and print outlets have declined pundits have bemoaned a crisis of criticism and mourned the death of the critic. Now that well paying jobs in film criticism have largely evaporated while blogs message boards and social media have given new meaning to the saying that everyone's a critic urgent questions have emerged about the status and purpose of film criticism in the twenty first century. In Film Criticism in the Digital Age ten scholars from across the globe come together to consider whether we are witnessing the extinction of serious film criticism or seeing the start of its rebirth in a new form Drawing from a wide variety of case studies and methodological perspectives the book's contributors find many signs of the film critic's declining clout but they also locate surprising examples of how critics whether moonlighting bloggers or salaried writers have been able to intervene in current popular discourse about arts and culture In addition to collecting a plethora of scholarly perspectives Film Criticism in the Digital Age includes statements from key bloggers and print critics like Armond White and Nick James Neither an uncritical celebration of digital culture nor a jeremiad against it this anthology offers a comprehensive look at the challenges and possibilities that the Internet brings to the evaluation promotion and explanation of artistic works The Theory of Criticism Murray Krieger, 2019-12-01

Originally published in 1976 Representing years of critical reflection The Theory of Criticism attempts to construct a poetics of presence Within a wide range of critical terminology Murray Krieger has sought to create a new vision In language that is passionate and often dramatic he looks at the multidimensionality of the poetic world through the lens of Western poetics His work clearly addresses itself to post New Critical questions how to preserve the literary object as a thing to be perceived valued and enjoyed and yet to account for its presence in and interaction with our culture as a whole always in danger of being dissolved into man's language making and forming activity in general Our awareness of the poem as object must be modified by our awareness that it is an intentional object Krieger develops his balanced vision in three parts Part 1 defines the problem and defends the very activity of theorizing both in its own terms and in terms of the critic's function throughout the history of Western criticism By asking at the outset whether criticism is vain or valuable Krieger already confronts the basic tension between system and world and the need to account for both By creating a heuristic system that examines the possibility of form the critic serves also the world of history and thought as a whole Part 2 pursues that history from the classical encounter with mimesis in Greek thought to the Romantic and post Romantic elevation of consciousness as a main criterion of poetic art Defining a humanistic aesthetic as it has been viewed since Aristotle the author shows how during and after the eighteenth century form was opened up under the impact of a Kantian and post Kantian view epitomized finally by Coleridge's imagination and its consequences for recent theorists Part 3 deals with the image of the world struggling against its enclosure within a poetic context It expands our view of metaphor as a reflection of the dual nature of poetic language simultaneously locked into the poem and referring to history and nature outside Our reading of the poem Krieger concludes must be double we must see the poem as a linear and chronological sequence reflecting real life and we must read it as a circular imitative mutually implicative mode The Personal Element in Literary Criticism Sam Francis Batdorf, 1917
