I. BETWEEN JEWISH PHILOSOPHY AND KABBALAH IN MODERN SCHOLARSHIP

The main purpose of this study is to elucidate some aspects of the relations between some writings of a mystic, Abraham Abulafia, the founder of ecstatic Kabbalah, and the medieval figure he admired most, Maimonides, the founder of Jewish Aristotelianism. This issue is to be understood as part of a much broader topic, which is fundamental for the understanding of the Jewish speculative corpora in the Middle Ages: the relation between philosophy and mysticism. As seen below, this issue has been already aborded by several scholars, one of the most eminent among them being Prof. Alexander Altmann. Therefore, before dwelling upon the details of the particular question let me survey briefly the state of the field.

The relationship between philosophy and mysticism in Judaism has been discussed several times by many scholars and thinkers. Two of them, David Neumark<sup>1</sup> and Franz Rosenzweig<sup>2</sup> have proposed a theory, which may be designated as the « pendulum theory », whose basic assumption is the existence of oscillations between the dominance of the speculative and the mystical in Jewish thought. The emergence of the central trend in medieval Jewish mysticism, Kabbalah, is portrayed by them as a reaction to the ascent of Jewish philosophy in the form presented by Maimonides's Guide of the Perplexed. These authors assume that the fluctuation between speculation and mysticism is to be traced to ancient times, the medieval period being the most obvious and important episode of this ongoing oscillation. Motivated by a deep aversion toward Kabbalah, Heinrich Graetz, the most important 19th century Jewish historian, has already considered Kabbalah to be a pernicious medieval innovation, or invention, aiming to counteract the influence of the « enlightening » Aristotelianism of the « Great eagle »<sup>3</sup>. Last but not least, Gershom Scholem emphasized the importance of the encounter between

The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a masterful and suspenseful novel that will keep you speculating until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
