

A scenic landscape featuring a church tower in the foreground, a forest of evergreen trees, and a range of mountains in the background under a soft, hazy sky. The scene is captured during sunset or sunrise, with a warm, orange glow. The text is overlaid on the image in two dark rectangular boxes.

I am lord of myself, accountable to none.

Restorative Policing Experiment Paul McCold,Benjamin Wachtel,2012-09-06 The Bethlehem Police Family Group Conferencing Experiment was the first randomized trial of restorative justice in the United States Moderately serious juvenile offenses were randomly assigned either to court or to a diversionary restorative policing process called family group conferencing Police based family group conferencing used trained police officers to facilitate a meeting attended by juvenile offenders their victims and their respective family and friends This group would discuss the harm caused by the offender s actions and develop an agreement to repair the harm The effect of the program was measured through surveys of victims offenders offender s parents and police officers and also by examining the outcomes of conferences and formal adjudication The book contains an extended appendix that presents these outcome based statistics for this seminal program At a time when research for new restorative justice programs in the 1990s was just beginning to surface this study provides a valuable picture of the successes of the family conferencing model in its early formation

Forging Reform in China Edward S. Steinfeld, 1999 The greatest economic challenge facing China in the post Deng era is the reform of unprofitable state owned enterprises SOEs which threaten to drag down the rest of the economy Despite an array of well intentioned market oriented reform measures these firms have never truly been forced to face the pressure of a bottom line or the threat of bankruptcy Forging Reform in China explains how and why these measures have not been sweepingly successful to date and what it would take to achieve meaningful reform The author investigates firm level processes including case studies of China s steel industry giants revealing institutional and systemic barriers to market oriented performance This book makes a compelling argument that private ownership cannot work in
