

Nira Kfir

An abstract graphic design featuring a large, light blue, diagonally striped shape that resembles a stylized letter 'K' or a similar geometric form. This shape is set against a solid light blue background. Below the main shape, there are smaller geometric elements: a dark green trapezoidal shape and a smaller, diagonally striped trapezoidal shape. The text is overlaid on the central part of the design.

Tackling Mental Health Crises David Kingdon, Marie Finn, 2012-09-10 Tackling Mental Health Crises provides a practical guide to combining social and psychological responses to mental health problems David Kingdon and Marie Finn look at what constitutes a crisis be it an individual crisis presentation or a situational crisis for services They reject current diagnostic approaches to mental health focussing instead on a symptom led approach and keeping an awareness of the intervention experience for clients and carers throughout Subjects covered include engaging and assessing the client risk assessment and management emotional behavioural cognitive and physical presentations service teams and settings The emphasis throughout is on taking a holistic look at crisis prevention and management encompassing both the work that takes place at an individual level and the wider impact of societal and political issues. Containing clear direction and practical advice combined with numerous case studies and commentary from users and carers themselves, this book will be of great use to anyone involved with dealing with mental health crises. Global Climate Education and Its Discontents Kathleen Gallagher, Christine Balt, 2024-10-31. This innovative and practical book offers pedagogical tools to show how drama can be used in educational settings to advance a relational action-oriented interdisciplinary and creative climate education attuned to the social and emotional effects of the climate emergency. Based on a six-year ethnographic research study taking place with teachers, artists, community leaders, and young people globally, and taking its lead from the following provocation: can performance become a site for new imaginaries for socio-ecological justice? The book explores the unique conceptual and pedagogical discontents of climate education across geographically and culturally distinct sites of learning. It also examines how artful engagement through drama pedagogies can open up more collective, critical, and hopeful forms of thinking and being. The book is divided into two sections. The first part of the book, Local Engagements and Encounters, consists of chapters that conduct an in-depth appraisal of the local artistic work from each site, examining how matters of socio-ecological justice are given fresh urgency and complexity through the application of performance as pedagogy. The second part of the book, Pedagogical and Artistic Innovations, offers substantive praxis chapters on the drama-based pedagogical methods employed in the research. In these chapters, the world-building capacities of theatre-making offer up new performative pedagogical orientations to the climate emergency beyond those of critique. Global Climate Education and Its Discontents: Using Drama to Forge a New Way is valuable reading for scholars interested in the ontological and epistemological dimensions of the climate emergency, especially within and across the following fields: drama, theatre, and performance studies; applied theatre and drama education; educational research; and children, childhood, and youth studies. The book also invites a readership of teachers and teacher educators who are interested in applying drama pedagogies in the classroom to explore matters of socio-ecological justice and the climate crisis.

The Psychology of Terrorism: A public understanding Chris E. Stout, 2002.
