

GOtha

Few territories are as important to Cross as Gotha, the seat of the Empire and the heart of the Cross War Machine.

After the dismantling of Apshe, Gotha was the province which contributed the most to the formation of CROSS as a whole, which places them in a privileged and prestigious position among all cross territories.

Due to this support Gotha is able to maintain the largest military industrial complex in all of Cross. Putting to shame the production facilities of all other territories to a whole. This in turn means that Gotha locks specialization of production, producing weapons and equipment of all types.

Because of this, Gotha was on the forefront of engineering the first generation of Space Vessels and became the example by which most other nations gauge their space craft.

Additionally, Gotha is the birthplace of the Nova. Specially engineered synthetic Heliforms bred and trained to combat the ever present Andros Menace. It was because of these killing machines that humanity was able to retain its grip on the planet despite the disadvantage in numbers.

Within Gotha exists several Military Orders which operate in tandem with the Cross Military. These Orders, such as the Teutonic Guard, often specialize in specific methods of combat and warfare, and can be called upon to serve alongside the military at a moment's notice acting in either supporting or core roles as needed.

When the Empire calls, Gotha stands ready to fight.

TEUTONIC KNIGHT

An order of elite Shocktroopers sworn by Cross standards. They consist from the most rigorous examples of Infantry and Cavalry from lines of crossed Cross. Trained with a strong sense of Tradition and Honor, they are conditioned to fight to win the most extreme of circumstances, such as heavily contested narrow and untraveled pathways. Recently they have been deployed to TARD to assist in fighting the DRG threat.

CRUSADER

The standard frontline military fighting force raised by Cross who carry to distinguished and reputation depending on the territory they hail from. Easily recognizable in any war zone this grounded respect on the battlefield. They are an organized and central that most territories contain more specialized units known for Crusaders. They have are allowed to join the Crusader Guard to maintain their loyalty and fidelity on the field.

SHADE

A class of scout for the most elite cross forces, specializing in stealth and observation and capable of such as Sabotage, Reconnaissance, and Tank Hunting. Recruited primarily from the Crosses coast for the notable presence in stealth and equipment with top of the line gear that the Winger Club, which refers to the surroundings, come to this, their specialty. They are also equipped with a heavy rifle able to utilize a wide variety of ammunition.

MARINE INFANTRY

The standard branch of the Shocktroops. They are the primary Shocking force for Cross. While they are trained in Gotha they are able to recruit from all Cross Territories. Their role is to ensure that a tactical landing can fight with all crossing forces without issue. They can be found along the coast of most Cross Naval Bases and also serve as the first stage to qualify for the Cross Space Navy.

YDRIGUARD

With the founding of the DSM Cross Space Naval there was need of an aggressive fighting force for Starling and Cavalry Starling in Cross, and the Ydriguard are the result. Heavily armored and armed with specialized weapons and armor, they continue the long standing Cross tradition of heavily armored and armed standard infantry. Recruited only from the veterans of the Cross Colonization, most are in an elite condition.

CSM PILOT

The pilots of the DSM are mostly made up of the veteran Star Wars, the pilot named Dorian, which consist of piloting anything from a fighter to a ship of the line. Their suits are designed to enhance their already impressive piloting skills by allowing them to push directly into their craft and also function as a universal space suit that can be worn by humans as well. If slightly associated due to the small stature of the Droids.

JAGER DIVISION

A combination of human and Nova forces trained for special combat scenarios such as mountain operations, guerrilla warfare, etc. They also act as military police, working to secure the military and government facilities. When in combat they are often equipped as Tank Hunters, often carrying Crusaders closely. As a tradition, each territory of Cross trains their own version of the Jagers.

PIONEER

The mobile pioneer corps form the basis for Cross operations around the globe. Responsible for building and maintaining any defense or facilities these may need to win the war, while also being flexible enough to engage the enemy for short periods of time. While they are not the only engineering force in Cross, they are the most numerous and as such, every territory of cross trains their own version of the Pioneer.

Cross Of Empire:

Crossing Empire's Edge Erik Esselstrom, 2020-02-29 For more than half a century the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs Gaimusho possessed an independent police force that operated within the space of Japan's informal empire on the Asian continent Charged with protecting and controlling local Japanese communities first in Korea and later in China these consular police played a critical role in facilitating Japanese imperial expansion during the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries Remarkably however this police force remains largely unknown Crossing Empire's Edge is the first book in English to reveal its complex history Based on extensive analysis of both archival and recently published Japanese sources Erik Esselstrom describes how the Gaimusho police became deeply involved in the surveillance and suppression of the Korean independence movement in exile throughout Chinese treaty ports and the Manchurian frontier during the 1920s and 1930s It had in fact evolved over the years from a relatively benign public security organization into a full fledged political intelligence apparatus devoted to apprehending purveyors of dangerous thought throughout the empire Furthermore the history of consular police operations indicates that ideological crime was a borderless security problem Gaimusho police worked closely with colonial and metropolitan Japanese police forces to target Chinese Korean and Japanese suspects alike from Shanghai to Seoul to Tokyo Esselstrom thus offers a nuanced interpretation of Japanese expansionism by highlighting the transnational links between consular colonial and metropolitan policing of subversive political movements during the prewar and wartime eras In addition by illuminating the fervor with which consular police often pressed for unilateral solutions to Japan's political security crises on the continent he challenges orthodox understandings of the relationship between civil and military institutions within the imperial Japanese state While historians often still depict the Gaimusho as an inhibitor of unilateral military expansionism during the first half of the twentieth century Esselstrom's expos on the activities and ideology of the consular police dramatically challenges this narrative Revealing a far greater complexity of motivation behind the Japanese colonial mission Crossing Empire's Edge boldly illustrates how the imperial Japanese state viewed political security at home as inextricably connected to political security abroad from as early as 1919 nearly a decade before overt military aggression began and approaches northeast Asia as a region of intricate and dynamic social economic and political forces In doing so Crossing Empire's Edge inspires new ways of thinking about both modern Japanese history and the modern history of Japan in East Asia
