have noted that these new forms of advertising are complements rather than substitutes for the kinds of advertising typically used by the news media 3 On the positive side of the equation the internet has enabled improved measurement of advertising performance and created new opportunities to improve the targeting of advertising to consumers Evans 2009 4 Anoth Our choice to leave this out of the model reflects the desire to focus on the novel effects in our model together with our observation that while internet advertising does impact the user experience the content of the sites rather than the level of advertising is the driving force behind online news media market shares We observe that for much of our analysis because we take outlet size  $x_i$  to be exogenous the key variables are the proportion of switchers and the proportion of loyal consumers for each outlet the specific model of consumer switching does not affect the results Then in the second period the ad platform knows the total supply of ad space for each consumer and allocates the remainder of the advertisers who place an order for those types of consumers First is it possible that 1 2 0 and there are only multi homing advertisers in the market For this to be an equilibrium the willingness to pay of a multi homing advertiser for an impression on an 31 outlet must exceed the willingness to pay of a single homing advertiser for an impression on an outlet Advertising & Selling ,1930
