American Needlework Treasures:

American Needlework Treasures Betty Ring, 1987 Samplers & Samplermakers Mary Jaene Edmonds, 1991

Schoelwer, Amy Kurtz Lansing, 2012-01-01 The Connecticut River Valley was an important center for the teaching and production of embroidered pictures by young women in private academies from the mid eighteenth to the early nineteenth century This book identifies the distinctive styles developed by teachers and students at schools throughout the valley from Connecticut and Massachusetts to Vermont and New Hampshire Needlework was a means of instilling the values of citizenship faith knowledge and patriotism into girls who would become mothers in the early republic This book describes and illustrates how these embroideries provide insight into the nature of women's schooling at this time. Over the course of their education, girls undertook progressively more complex and difficult needlework. Before the age of ten, they stitched elementary samplers on linen. As the culmination of their studies, they executed elaborate samplers, memorials, and silk pictures as evidence of the skills and accomplishments befitting a lady. Proudly displayed as enticements to potential suitors, these pieces affirmed a young woman's mastery of the polite arts, which encompassed knowledge of religious and literary themes as well as art and music. This publication has been made possible through the generous support of The Coby Foundation Ltd, the Connecticut Humanities Council, the Connecticut Commission on Culture and Tourism, Furthermore, a program of the J. M. Kaplan Fund and several private donors. Tennessee Samplers, Jennifer Core, Janet S.

Hasson, 2025-07-29. This extensive study, nearly twenty years in the making, is a major contribution to the understanding of American textile material culture. Candace J. Adelson, Senior Curator of Fashion and Textiles, Emeritus, Tennessee State Museum, contains dozens of beautiful full-color photographs. Jennifer C. Core and Janet S. Hasson's study of samplers, embroideries that are first attempts at a new technique, color combination, or unusual material, provides vivid descriptions of this nineteenth-century Tennessee art form in its many varieties. The authors not only catalogue and describe samplers from each of Tennessee's major regions, West, Middle, and East, but also incorporate research on the sampler makers and their families. This research provides fascinating insight into the stitchers, their teachers, and their academies. Including a chapter on female education on the Tennessee frontier and another on embroideries and needlework focused on mourning, the volume draws on oral histories of the embroiderers' descendants, family Bibles, diaries, scrapbooks, cemetery records, and other primary sources. Photos of the samplers are accompanied by detailed descriptions of styles, thread count, materials used, frames, and motifs. Ultimately, the study provides a glimpse of the lives of girls and young women in nineteenth-century Tennessee, including the role of this ornamental art in their education. Providing important historical context on Tennessee education, economy, and domestic life, Core and Hasson describe how embroidery came to be a crucial primary source in revealing the lives of girls and young women during a time when little was recorded about them. This book is an authoritative record of the material culture produced in the daily routine of school rooms. It is for all who see beauty in sometimes overlooked handiwork and understand the importance of curating, preserving, and analyzing it. AB Bookman's Weekly, 1997.

Stitching the World: Embroidered Maps and Women's Geographical Education, Judith A. Tyner, 2016-12-05. From the late eighteenth century until about 1840, schoolgirls in the British Isles and the United States created embroidered map samplers and even silk globes. Hundreds of British maps were made, and although American examples are more rare, they form a significant collection of artefacts. Descriptions of these samplers stated that they were designed to teach needlework and geography. The focus of this book is not on stitches and techniques used in drafting the maps, but rather why they were developed, how they diffused from the British Isles to the United States, and why they were made for such a brief time. The events of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries stimulated an explosion of interest in geography. The American and French Revolutions, the wars between France and England, the War of 1812, Captain Cook's voyages and the explorations of Lewis and Clark made the study of places exciting and important. Geography was the first science taught to girls in school. This period also coincided with major changes in educational theories and practices, especially for girls, and this book uses needlework maps and globes to chart a broader discussion of women's geographic education. In this light, map samplers and embroidered globes represent a transition in women's education from accomplishments in the eighteenth century to challenging geographic education and conventional map drawing in schools and academies of the second half of the nineteenth century. There has been little serious study of these maps by cartographers and moreover, historians of cartography have largely neglected the role of women in mapping. Children's maps have not been studied although they might have much to offer about geographical teaching and perceptions of a period, and map samplers have been dismissed because they are the work of schoolgirls. Needlework historians likewise have not done in-depth studies of map samplers until recently. Stitching the World is an interdisciplinary work drawing on cartography, needlework, and material culture. This book for the first time provides a critical analysis of these artefacts, showing that they offer significant insights into both eighteenth and nineteenth-century geographic thought and cartography in the USA and the UK, and into the development of female education. Antiques, 1928 Expressions of a New Spirit Elizabeth V. Warren, Stacy C. Hollander, 1989

Home Sweet Home Deborah Harding, Laura Fisher, 2001. The authors approach the popular folk art genre of the house thematically through its depiction in various craft media: quilts, paintings, drawings, samplers, rugs, furnishing, and more. 150 photos. The Art of Family D. Brenton Simons, Peter Benes, 2002. In this lavishly illustrated volume, which features over 200 halftones and sixteen color plates from public and private collections, distinguished experts in history, art, and genealogy explore the important but often overlooked relationship between material culture and family history in New England during the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth centuries. The contributors examine a broad range of family record artifacts, including genealogical samplers, mourning embroideries, pen and ink family registers, gravestones, heraldica, textiles, furniture, silver, and portraiture. An indispensable resource on the world of decorative arts and its significance in preserving family identity, this beautiful work provides much valuable information and research clues for modern-day genealogists. Hyman's Trash Or Treasure Guide to the Best Buyers Tony Hyman, 2002. Applied and Decorative Arts Donald L. Ehresmann, 1993. This reference work covers general works, ornament, folk art, arms and armour, ceramics, clocks, and automata, costumes, enamels, furniture, glass, leather, metalwork, musical instruments, textiles, dolls, and more. Essentially a new work rather than a revision, this annotated bibliography on the history of applied and decorative arts includes over 3000 descriptive entries on books written in western European languages. More than 1000 of these entries are new to the second edition, and approximately half are titles published since 1977. The remainder represent a significant expansion in breadth and depth of
