Determinants Of Spatial Organization:

Determinants of spatial organization, 1979 Determinants of Spatial Organization Society for Developmental Biology, 1979 Determinants of Spatial Organization Stephen Subtelny, 2012-12-02 Determinants of Spatial Organization documents the proceedings of the 35th symposium of the Society for Developmental Biology in 1978. The symposium brings together a diverse group of investigators who are engaged in the analysis of mechanisms involved in spatial organization. The contributions made by researchers at the symposium are organized into three parts. Part I on the cytoplasmic localization of determinants includes studies on fine structure of cytoplasmic specializations of the polar lobe of molluscan embryos, the fine structure of the polar granules of Drosophila eggs and the polarity of rhizoid formation in Fucus. Part II deals with maternal effect mutants of developmental processes. It includes studies on temperature sensitive maternal effect mutants in the free living nematode Caenorhabditis elegans, the nature of the control of gene action during development and deviations from normal development observed in mutant embryos of Drosophila melanogaster. Part III examines pattern formation in developing systems. It includes studies on intracellular patterning in Tetrahymena, developmental properties of nerve free hydra and intercellular interactions and pattern formation in filamentous cyanobacteria.

Determinants of Spatial Organization, 1979 Determinants of Spatial Organization Society for Developmental Biology. Symposium, 1979 Certain Factors in the Development of a New Spatial Coordination Mrs. Wooster Curti, 1923 Differentiation and Neoplasia R. G. McKinnell, M. A. Diberardino, M. Blumenfeld, R. D. Bergad, 2013-03-09. There is no commonly accepted mechanism to explain differentiation of either normal or neoplastic cells. Despite this fact the organizers of the 3rd International Conference on Differentiation recognized that there is much emerging evidence which supports the view that both normal cells and many cancer cells share common differentiative processes. Accordingly the organizers perceived that clinical scientists and developmental biologists would greatly benefit by together considering differentiation. In that way developmental biologists would be apprised of recent insights in cancer cell biology and the physician scientist would be updated on events in developmental biology and both would gain new understanding of the cell biology of neoplasia. A specific example may reveal the potential value of developmental biologists interacting with cancer physicians. An example chosen at random suggests that probably any paper included in the symposium volume would serve the purpose. Dr Stephen Subtelny reviewed recent studies by his laboratory concerning germ cell migration and replication in frog embryos. How might those results interest the cancer scientist? Dr Subtelny showed that primordial germ cells of a fertile graft will reverse their migratory direction and move into a sterile host. Perhaps in this context it would not be inappropriate to state that the germ cells of the graft metastasized into the host. Germ cells from grafts of a different species will populate the previously sterile host gonad.

The Molecular Biology of Cell Determination and Cell Differentiation Leon W. Browder,1988-05-31 This series was established to create comprehensive treatises on specific topics in developmental biology Such volumes serve a useful role in developmental biology which is a very diverse field that receives contributions from a wide variety of disciplines This series is a meeting ground for the various practitioners of this science facilitating an integration of heterogeneous information on specific topics Each volume is comprised of chapters selected to provide the conceptual basis for a comprehensive understanding of its topic as well as an analysis of the key experiments upon which that understanding is based The specialist in any aspect of developmental biology should understand the experimental background of the specialty and be able to place that body of information in context in order to ascertain where additional research would be fruitful The creative process then generates new experiments This series is intended to be a vital link in that ongoing process of learning and discovery
