Low Carbon Transport in Asia Eric Zusman, Ancha Srinivasan, Shobhakar Dhakal, 2012-03-29 Without the effective participation of developing Asia a climate crisis is certain Within developing Asia the key to averting such a crisis lies in low carbon transport China India and Asia's other emerging economies could promote fuel efficient vehicles public transport and sustainable urban planning Or they could become locked into inefficient vehicles energy intensive infrastructure and suburban sprawl The path they choose will have long term implications for the entire world And it will depend upon the extent to which they adopt a co benefit approach A co benefit approach involves recognizing that some transport policies mitigate greenhouse gases while simultaneously improving urban air quality commuting times and energy security Accounting for these additional benefits can overcome a reluctance to bear the costs of climate actions But it also presents unique technical financial and institutional challenges to decision makers unaccustomed to optimizing multiple benefits The book represents a pioneering effort to identify and remove barriers to a co benefit approach in developing Asia's transport sector The introductory section makes the case for co benefits in developing Asia's transport sector The second section features analytical frameworks to identify strategies with potential co benefits offering new findings on black carbon and dieselization The third section grounds the analytic work in case studies on fuel switching in Pakistan urban planning in Bandung Indonesia congestion charges in Beijing vehicle restraints in Hanoi and bus rapid transit in Jakarta A final section examines whether a post 2012 climate regime can help transform a rapidly motorizing Asia into a low carbon Asia This book is essential reading for transport policy makers planners and researchers concerned with low carbon transport climate change and development in Asia and the wider world

Transport Development in Asian Megacities Shigeru

Morichi, Surya Raj Acharya, 2012-07-27 The rapid growth of the Asian urban population concentrates on a few large cities turning them into giant megacities Despite new theoretical insights into the benefits of megacities the emerging Asia is facing a daunting challenge concerning the management of infrastructure and services in their megacities The deteriorating urban mobility is the most difficult challenge with respect to the sharp increase in vehicle numbers and to inadequate and poorly managed road infrastructure Public transport a sustainable mode of mobility is subjected to a vicious cycle of poor service decreasing ridership and lower investment Despite various policy initiatives the situation has not improved The scale and growth pattern of Asian megacities have distinctive features which generate a unique set of challenges and opportunities New perspectives are needed to effectively address the transportation problems making the best use of available opportunities This book which is a result of an international collaborative research addresses these challenges by providing insightful analysis and novel viewpoints

Development of International Entrepreneurship Based on Corporate Accounting and Reporting According to IFRS Mansur P. Eshov, Gulnora K. Abdurakhmanova, Aktam U. Burkhanov, Nodira B.

Abdusalomova, Shakhlo T. Ergasheva, 2024-06-28 Development of International Entrepreneurship based on Corporate Accounting and Reporting According to IFRS Part B provides insights into practical experiences with IFRS application in corporate accounting and reporting adding to ongoing discussions on international trade development through IFRS modernization and application Transportation Infrastructure Development in Asia Pacific, 1997 The Development Dimension Innovation for Water Infrastructure Development in the Mekong Region OECD, Asian Development Bank Institute, Mekong Institute, 2020-08-31 Water related infrastructure could contribute significantly to the development of the Mekong region At the same time poor water infrastructure could lead to development challenges for the countries in the region Innovation for Water Infrastructure Development in the Mekong Region discusses the challenges facing the region as well as the possible innovative policy options including those used in Emerging Asian countries and with reference to the experiences of OECD member countries Southeast Asian Economic Outlook 2010 OECD, 2010-11-26 This inaugural edition of the Southeast Asian Economic Outlook looks at current efforts to rebalance growth for the region and at what form growth will take in the future The Development Dimension Road and Rail Infrastructure in Asia Investing in Quality OECD, 2018-10-06 Road and Rail Infrastructure in Asia Investing in Quality discusses the challenges facing the region and possible policy options including those previously or currently used in Emerging Asian countries with reference to the experiences of OECD member countries Technical Assistance for Regional Cooperation in Transport Projects in Central Asia Asian Development Bank, 2002 Infrastructure Financing In Asia Bambang Susantono, Donghyun Park, Shu Tian, 2019-11-19 First the book documents the evolution of Asia's infrastructure over the past half century and reviews existing literature on the role of infrastructure investment in supporting growth and social development It highlights the positive impact of mass transit investments on land and property values and the possibility of taxing the increase in values to finance these investments It then examines Asia's current practices and new solutions that can help meet the infrastructure gap It discusses the role of institutions how innovation can foster energy infrastructure investments and the role of bond markets in infrastructure investments The book explores ASEAN 3 efforts in developing local currency bond markets to provide long term local financing for infrastructure investment while providing financial resilience It also examines the use of green bonds to finance sustainable growth in Asia Register of Development Research Projects in Asia and the Pacific Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. Development Centre, Asian and Pacific Development Centre, Association of Development Research and Training Institutes of Asia and the Pacific, 1989 In English and French Parallel title R pertoire des projets de recherche en mati re de d veloppement en Asie et dans le Pacifique Central Asia Human Development Report Johannes F. Linn, Martha Blaxall, 2005 This report is a comprehensive analysis of the many challenges that confront Central Asia including high trade costs environmental devastation increased inequality rising migration the rapid spread of HIV AIDS and poor governance There has been recent progress towards regional cooperation

but the barriers created by borders negatively affect peoples lives It is contended that increased cooperation among the Central Asian republics Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan would produce substantial political and economic gains including income increases of 50 percent to 100 percent over the next ten years The cost of non cooperation is continued deterioration in income distribution social services and general living conditions according to the Report and possibly a descent into the vicious cycle of economic crisis and corrupt governance that often leads to social unrest

Transport and Communications Bulletin for Asia and the Pacific ,1978 Regional Co-operation and Integration in Asia Asian Development Bank,Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,1995 Comprises 17 papers along with opening remarks Discusses the intra regional flows of goods and capital between the Asian economies following the liberalization of trade and investment regimes in the 1980s and early 1990s Considers the implications of such open regionalism for the rest of the world particularly the countries of Europe Annual Report - Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific United Nations. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,2001

Contemporary Central Asia ,2003 Infrastructure for a Seamless Asia Asian Development Bank,2009 This study examines major challenges and issues associated with developing regional infrastructure through the fostering of regional cooperation in Asia and provides a framework for pan Asian infrastructure cooperation The study s long term vision is the creation of a seamless Asia an integrated region connected by world class environmentally friendly infrastructure in terms of both hard physical and soft facilitating infrastructure The soft part supports the development and operation of the hard component Findings indicate that the benefits of upgrading and extending Asia s infrastructure networks are substantial and that all countries in the region would benefit A logistics network is only as good as its weakest link each country in a regional supply chain gains from infrastructure improvements made in others Improving connectivity in the region would bring Asia large welfare gains through increased market access reduced trade costs and more efficient energy production and use According to the study to achieve this Asia needs to invest approximately 8 trillion in overall national infrastructure between 2010 and 2020 In addition Asia needs to spend approximately 290 billion on specific regional infrastructure projects in transport and energy that are already in the pipeline

Trends in National and Regional Investors Financing Crossborder Infrastructure Projects in Asia Prabir De,Muthi Samudram,Sanjeev Moholkar,2010 This study examines a range of cross border infrastructure development issues related to the Asian countries Despite active pursuit of private investment in infrastructure by most developing countries in Asia and a growing number of success stories the pace of such investment remains slow Participation by the private sector in infrastructure development has been mixed While there has been moderate progress in national infrastructure development by the private sector progress is rather limited in the case of development of cross border infrastructure in Asia This study documents that Asian countries have attracted higher private sector investment for the development of national infrastructure projects such as seaports and airports as compared to cross border infrastructure projects The rising trend among private investors in infrastructure projects indicates a decline of investments by developed country investors One of the findings of this study is that cross border energy projects have received greater private sector investment globally as compared to transport telecommunication and water projects In the context of Asia too energy sector projects still dominate the investment scenario By considering all modes of financing this study finds that cross border infrastructure financing in Asia has witnessed an upward trend in the last decade and a half Aside from hydropower projects in Bhutan cross border infrastructure in Asia is pursued through public private partnerships Interestingly these few cross border projects in Asia have limited private sector investors compared to other regions despite a wide base of local investors in Asia This paper also shows that public sector investment drives cross border energy and transportation projects in Asia whereas private sector investments have picked up the pace only recently specifically after the 1997 Asian financial crisis This study recommends that given the huge infrastructure investment needs of the region and insufficient government resources the role of the private sector and public private partnerships in enhancing infrastructure facilities in Asia is very crucial A review of select case studies of cross border infrastructure projects clearly indicates that the major reasons for slow progress of regional infrastructure development by private sector stem from both economic to non economic issues that need to be addressed in order to promote seamless Asia Economic and Social Survey of Asia and the Pacific 2014 ,2014 The Survey 2014 examines the region s challenges to support its economic growth and to promote inclusive and sustainable development Part I of the report focuses on the region s outlook as it contends with the ongoing global economic uncertainty and assesses the region s policy response to remaining and emerging vulnerabilities It also examines the role of sustainable agriculture in closing the development gaps in least developed countries A special theme is domestic resource mobilisation in the region which explores the challenges on strengthening tax revenues Part II of the report discusses strategic approaches to strengthen regional connectivity to achieve shared prosperity particularly the ways in which various networks facilitate trade production networks and investment flows within the region Proposed Loan and Asian Development Fund Grant, Islamic Republic of Afghanistan ,2006
