

8 Steps to Write a Good Composition

Are you having trouble with your writing skills? Read this and you will find good and simple advice to make things much easier and your compositions much better. Even impressive. Just follow the 8 steps we will show you.

Most people feel somehow at a loss when they have to write a composition or an essay. They think for a moment, and then they start writing and writing and writing till they consider it is time to finish, and so they finish. That is probably the worst approach to composition writing. You must be talented and very experienced if you expect to write good compositions that way.

The first thing to consider is that a composition is not simply a piece of writing. It must be composed, it must have a structure and a cohesive organisation. Compare these two examples:

A- My brother's tall and handsome and with blue eyes and, yeah, well, maybe a bit fat, but not much, you know, something like your cousin, but maybe not that much. And he's very funny, ha ha, I'll tell you about what he did yesterday, but not now. And brown-haired. Almost dark. Well, not dark but... well, yeah, dark. Oh, I said funny, but well, when he's got a bad day, uff he scares me sometimes...

B- My brother is tall, handsome and has got blue eyes. He is a little fat, but not much. His hair is dark brown. I like him because he is very funny and always makes me laugh. Nevertheless, he can also be quite serious sometimes.

As you can easily perceive, A is a good example of oral English, but it would be totally unacceptable for a composition. On the other hand, B is the right thing to say when writing, with simple, organised ideas. But B would be considered too pedantic and even unacceptable when talking in a normal conversation.

Using a correct language is part of it, but not enough. Both A and B are correct language, but Spoken and Written language are different, they use, to some extent, different vocabulary, different grammar and, especially, a different way to express things!

So if correction is not the only thing we need for a composition, what is it we also need? Organisation. We need to compose our text like a nice piece of music, flowing. We need to organise our ideas into paragraphs and make sure every paragraph, as well as the whole composition, is cohesive. Our thoughts must unfold beautifully, clearly and in a simple way in a sort of straight line that will lead us from one idea to the next to end up in a conclusion. And that is not something you can usually come out with by just sitting and writing. You need to have a plan first.

Many think that planning is a waste of time, especially if you are sitting for an exam and time is limited. But the truth is that planning your composition will not only make the task easy and much better; it will also make it all faster. At least once you have practised a little bit.

An Experimental Evaluation of Seven Composition Scales Dorothy Speer, 1929 Hudelson English Composition Scale Earl Hudelson, 1921 Transactions on Aspect-Oriented Software Development VI Shmuel Katz, Harold Ossher, 2009-10-26 work for small problems but it introduces significant accidental complexities when tackling larger problems. Note that the real challenge here is not how to design the system to take a particular aspect into account; there is significant design know-how in industry on this, and it is often captured in the form of design patterns. Taking into account more than one aspect can be a little harder, but many large-scale successful projects in industry provide some evidence that engineers know how different concerns should be handled. The real challenge is reducing the effort that the engineer has to expend when grappling with many interdependent concerns. For example, in a product line context, when an engineer wants to replace a variant of an aspect used in a system, she should be able to do this cheaply, quickly, and safely. Manually weaving every aspect is not an option. Unlike many models used in the sciences, models in software and in linguistics have the same nature as the things they model. In software, this provides an opportunity to automatically derive software from its model, that is, to automate the weaving process. This requires models to be formal and the weaving process to be described as a program, i.e., an executable meta-model. Manipulating models to produce a detailed design. The detailed design produced by the weaving process can ultimately be transformed to code or at least test suites.
