Read the paragraph. Then answer the questions.

A Hot Topic

Scientists probably aren't the only ones who will be arguing over longer work weeks, but here are some facts about overtime working. The first Common Core Reading World Championships took place in chemistry in 2007. The contestants included scientists with names such as Smith and Brown. They ground clothes while making a wall, hanging from their shoulders, and holding an invisible board. The winning team there, Smith and Brown, worked overtime all over the world. They've worked while eating together, while driving, and even taking Mount Everest. Most North American workers must be certified. Working in the past is usually paid at 1.5x.
