Barter Constance Stapleton, Phyllis C. Richman, 1978 Barter is a game in which each player trades to get what he wants and both players win It s a weapon to fight inflation recession depression and greed and it s the art of affluence without money It s easy but only if you know how to do it This is the book that teaches the rules of the game a book full of examples simple rules and outrageous suggestions Find out how to find what you need how to get the best of the deal Barter is more fun more profitable and ultimately easier than spending money and anyone who has carpooled traded baseball cards or swapped babysitting services has taken the first step This could be the beginning of some magnificent barter's Publisher's description

Scientific Study of Society Max Steuer, 2013-03-09 Tradition recognises five social sciences anthropology economics social psychology sociology and political science But who knows what is going on in all five disciplines Social scientists from one discipline often know little or nothing about the progress made by social scientists from another discipline working on essentially the same social problem Sometimes even of a neighbouring discipline is terra incognita the methodology The problem becomes worse when we widen the remit to natural scientists and engineers I have found little evidence myself that they see themselves as standing on the other side of an unbridgeable gulf between two cultures They observe the intellectual excesses of those few new-age social scientists who see themselves fighting a science war but the ignorance of these innumerate critics is so apparent in their grossly naive attacks on natural science that they are not taken seriously However although natural scientists appreciate that most social science is genuine science they seldom know much about how and why it is done as it is This can lead to serious inefficiencies in areas in which the traditional frontiers between social and natural science are melting away An example is the frontier between the economics of imperfect competition and evolutionary biology Reversing the usual bias the evolutionary biologists commonly know little mathematics and hence find the game theory literature hard to read with the result that they often spend their time re-inventing the wheel Life is Movement Eugen Sandow, 1920 First Principles of Economics Richard G.
