Characteristics and Wounding Effects of a Black Powder Handgun DI. Labowitz,RC. Menzies,RJ. Scroggie,1981 Commercial exploitation of the recent increase in interest in American history has led to an increased availability of weapons designed to use black powder gunpowder In some states controls on these weapons are poor or nonexistent In this study a 44 caliber black powder revolver is described and compared with a 45 ACP modern revolver The kinetic energies of their missiles were very similar In addition to the usual wound appearances determined by range and direction of fire it was noted that the soot associated with wounds from the black powder handgun was much greater than from the control and had a characteristic sulfurous smell Much more true tattooing was present around the black powder wounds The spherical shape of the missile and the presence of black powder in crypts in the missile base were both characteristic of a black powder revolver Striations were well represented on the ball but were easily destroyed during recovery because the lead was so soft Swabs from around the wounds and from the shooter s hand revealed a large deposit of barium but little antimony Wounds inflicted by black powder handguns may be detected more or less reliably The Blue Book of Modern Black Powder Values Dennis Adler,2000-05 THE BLUE BOOK OF MODERN BLACK POWDER VALUES is a softcover reference value guide for modern black powder firearms With 96 pages of B W value pricing model information over 24 pages of color this book is designed as the sequel to Colt Blackpowder Reproductions Replicas in addition to being another stand alone Blue Book title This book contains the most up to date information pricing on almost all modern black powder firearms Mfg Sug List Price 12 95 2 S H Available from Baker Taylor or Ingram or directly from the publisher by calling toll free 1 800 877 4867 non domestic 952 854 5229 fax 952 853 1486 or web site www.bluebookinc.com

Percussion Pistols and Revolvers Mike Cumpston,Johnny Bates,2005-07 In the early transition from the long lived flintlock system handgun development closely paralleled that of the long arms With the advent of the revolving pistols however came patents that created monopolies in revolver production and the through bored cylinder necessary for self contained metallic cartridges The caplock revolvers took on a separate evolution and remained state of the art long after the widespread appearance of cartridge firing rifles and shotguns They rode in the holsters of of explorers and adventurers across the world and granted safe conduct in the back alleys of the Industrial West right up until the last quarter of the 19th Century Handguns possess a mystique distinctly different from that of other firearms They are tools of personal empowerment chosen by their owners to provide independence and freedom of movement In the ambitious optimistic early years of western industrial civilization they were the emblem of liberty and equality and the bane of repressive governments and social movements Largely because of the traditions that emerged in the time of the caplock pistols and revolvers they remain so in the early years of the 21st Century

Homicide with a Black Powder Handgun JD. DeHaan,1983 A young white male was found shot to death in the entry hall of his home The nature of the projectiles found in the body and the appearance of unusual residues on the walls of the hallway suggested that a percussion cap black powder weapon had been used Interviews with acquaintances of the victim also suggested that a percussion cap revolver may have been involved and it became of critical importance to reconstruct the circumstances of the crime since the weapon itself was not recovered Weapons similar to that allegedly used were test fired under controlled conditions and residues from the muzzle and cylinder blast were compared to residues at the scene Based upon these comparisons standard distance determinations the pathological findings and the characteristics of the recovered projectiles the dynamics of both victim and perpetrator could be reconstructed Their relative positions and the sequence of shots were also reconstructed The comparisons conducted in this case revealed that black powder revolvers produce large amounts of unusual residues which supplement the usual range of firearm evidence to make even complex reconstructions possible
