Black Political Attitudes:

Black Political Attitudes Charles S. Bullock, Harrell R. Rodgers, 1972 African-American Political Psychology T. Philpot, I. White, 2010-11-08 This volume addresses questions such as How do the unique experiences of Blacks in America influence their political psychology What are the psychological mechanisms underlying Blacks orientation toward politics and can these mechanisms help account for observed differences in Black political attitudes and behavior Racial Attitudes in America Today Clarissa Peterson, Emmitt Y. Riley, III, 2022-04-19 With this book Clarissa Peterson and Emmitt Y Riley III dive into how racial attitudes change and inform political decisions Peterson and Riley use racial resentment black blame and racial identity to investigate the extent to which racial attitudes influence vote choice evaluations of Black Lives Matter and attitudes toward public policies Moving the conversation beyond the study of Blacks and Whites the authors unpack the potency of racial attitudes among Asians Blacks Hispanics and Whites In doing so they challenge our understanding of how racial attitudes are central to political decision making in an environment that is inundated with anti Blackness The book reframes discussions of racial attitudes to propose that like White people some racial minorities in the United States harbor negative attitudes toward Black people The authors suggest that while White political attitudes are significantly explained by racial resentment the overall influence of racial resentment on political decision making among some racial groups may be mitigated by racial identity At a time when White supremacists walk unhooded in the streets of America Racial Attitudes in America Today is essential reading for educators wanting to fully engage with and understand racial resentment in America and undergraduate students in the fields of political science sociology history and psychology Black Political Publics Benjamin Paul Bowser, 1976 Dimensions of Blackness Jas M. Sullivan, Jonathan Winburn, William E. Cross Jr., 2018-10-09 A multidimensional perspective captures the complexities of African American racial identity While the dynamics of racial oppression limit the range of attitudes blacks may construct and hold their basic humanity introduces additional attitudinal variance that is nearly boundless Rather than claim it is possible to conceptualize and measure every iteration of blackness modern social theorists such as Robert Sellers and William Cross Jr contend that one should systematically sample the unmanageable range of different identity frames found among blacks In Dimensions of Blackness the authors suggest there is no single solitary way to express black racial identity They move away from blackness as binary and instead reveal what happens when black racial identity is conceptualized with difference of opinion Using a multidimensional perspective this book explores whether black racial identity differences among blacks influence political attitudes and behavior

Changing White Attitudes toward Black Political Leadership Zoltan L. Hajnal, 2006-12-25 Despite the hopes of the civil rights movement researchers have found that the election of African Americans to office has not greatly improved the well being of the black community By shifting the focus to the white community this book shows that black representation can have a profound impact Utilizing national public opinion surveys data on voting patterns in large American cities and in depth studies of Los Angeles and Chicago Zoltan Hajnal demonstrates that under most black mayors there is real positive change in the white vote and in the racial attitudes of white residents This change occurs because black incumbency provides concrete information that disproves the fears and expectations of many white residents These findings not only highlight the importance of black representation they also demonstrate the critical role that information can play in racial politics to the point where black representation can profoundly alter white views and white votes What's Going On? Katherine Tate,2010-08-19 In political opinion surveys from the 1950s through the 1970s African Americans were consistently among the most liberal groups in the United States and were much further to the left than White Americans on most issues Starting in the 1980s Black public opinion began to move to the center and this trend has deepened since Why is this the case Katherine Tate contends that Black political incorporation and increased affluence since the civil rights movement have made Black politics and public opinion more moderate over time Black leaders now have greater opportunity to participate in mainstream politics and Blacks look to elected officials rather than activists for political leadership Black socioeconomic concerns have moved to the center as poverty has declined and their economic opportunities have improved Based on solid analysis of public opinion data from the 1970s to the present Tate examines how Black opinions on welfare affirmative action crime control school vouchers civil rights for other minorities immigration the environment and U S foreign policy have changed Blacks and the American Political System Huey Perry,1995 These essays offer a current and comprehensive analysis of black politics and its impact at the national level on the American political system Whether analyzing the Supreme Court interest groups public policy the Congressional Black Caucus or political attitudes and behavior these essays demonstrate that African Americans participate in national politics in a substantial way and that they have done so in a manner consistent with pluralist theory However they have been less active in executive policy making and this trend is also explored and analyzed Behind the Mule Michael C. Dawson,1995-07-23 The key to African American social identity can be found behind the mule Dawson suggests A community oppressed for centuries will not yield easily to division along class lines The Expanding Boundaries of Black Politics Georgia A. Persons,2011-12-31 This volume joins the preceding volumes in this distinguished series in presenting contemporary research by leading political scientists addressing topics of interest to those concerned with African American affairs It captures the expanding boundaries of black politics and the persistent interests of the black community at large The anchoring symposium The Expanding Boundaries of Black Politics presents the scholarship of a cadre of young black political scientists actively engaged in the critical tasks of moving forward the study of black politics Their concerns include expanding the boundaries of black politics along the lines of epistemology and methodology especially in regard to core issues and areas within this field In an introductory essay by Todd Shaw the work of these scholars is situated within the context of temporal shifts in scholarly emphases Overlapping issues and concerns across time as well as black political scholarship as defined in the field since its beginning are addressed The second part of this volume entitled Maximizing the Black Vote Recognizing the Limits of Electoral Politics concentrates on serious lingering social concerns These include the policy significance of black mayors affecting the concomitant impact of the black vote the boundaries being pushed concerning the conjunction of black theology and sexual identity a gendered analysis of familial policies and the deepening social and economic plight of young black males including felon disfranchisement The Expanding Boundaries of Black Politics carries forth the search for an understanding of the relationship between religion the black church and black political behavior cross racial group coalitions as concerns matters of immigration growing multiculturalism and the impact on black politics maximizing the impact of the black vote focusing on voting rights enforcement the black vote in presidential elections and the voice of the Congressional Black Caucus in American foreign policy and persistent social inequalities especially as it concerns ideology federalism and social welfare policy

African American Perspectives on Political Science Wilbur C. Rich,2007 African American political scientists speak out about their discipline academic issues and racism in the profession

Segregation and Black Political Efficacy Elizabeth Oltmans Ananat,Ebonya Washington,2007 The impact of segregation on Black political efficacy is theoretically ambiguous On one hand increased contact among Blacks in more segregated areas may mean that Blacks are better able to coordinate political behavior On the other hand lesser contact with non Blacks may mean that Blacks have less political influence over voters of other races We find that exogenous increases in segregation lead to decreases in Black civic efficacy as measured by an ability to elect Representatives who vote liberally and more specifically in favor of legislation that is favored by Blacks This tendency for Representatives from more segregated MSAs to vote more conservatively arises in spite of the fact that Blacks in more segregated areas hold more liberal political views than do Blacks in less segregated locales We find evidence that this decrease in efficacy is driven by greater divergence between Black and non Black political views in the most segregated areas Because Blacks are a minority in every MSA increased divergence by race implies that the mean Black voter viewpoint is farther away from the mean voter viewpoint Thus reduced Black political efficacy may be one reason that Blacks in exogenously more segregated areas experience worse economic outcomes

African American Politics in Rural America E. Pulse of the People Lakeyta M. Bonnette,2015-04-15 Hip Hop music encompasses an extraordinarily diverse range of approaches to politics Some rap and Hip Hop artists engage directly with elections and social justice organizations others may use their platform to call out discrimination poverty sexism racism police brutality and other social ills In Pulse of the People Lakeyta M Bonnette illustrates the ways rap music serves as a vehicle for the expression and advancement of the political thoughts of the urban Black community a population frequently marginalized within American society and alienated from electoral politics Pulse of the People lays a foundation for the study of political rap music and public opinion research and demonstrates ways in which political attitudes asserted in the music have been transformed into direct action and behavior of constituents Bonnette examines the history of rap music and its relationship to and extension from other cultural and political vehicles within Black America presenting criteria for identifying the specific subgenre of music that is political rap She complements the statistics of rap music exposure with lyrical analysis of rap songs that espouse Black Nationalist and Black Feminist attitudes Touching on a number of critical moments in American racial politics including the 2008 and 2012 elections and the cases of the Jena 6 Troy Davis and Trayvon Martin Pulse of the People makes a compelling case for the influence of rap music in the political arena and greatly expands our understanding of the ways political ideologies and public opinion are formed Public Policy Preferences and Political Attitudes Dietra Yvette Trent,2007 Since the Civil Rights era African Americans have come a long way In the years since the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act there have been dramatic increases in education political representation business ownership and occupational position Yet for all of the economic social and political advances made in the African American community many young people are still subjected to inferior schools housing and depressed communities where crime drugs police brutality and HIV AIDS run rampant As a result there is a growing tension among the community over the root causes of their predicament and the most adequate way of dealing with them Based on the generational political theory this dissertation examines generational effects within the African American community since 1964 From this period three distinct cohorts are analyzed the Civil Rights Integration and Hip Hop generations The objective is to determine if different experiences over this period have modified political values attitudes and behaviors from one generation to the next Using data from the 1996 National Black Elections Study NBES I examine public policy preferences and political attitudes of African Americans I use bivariate and multivariate analysis to show generational gaps in attitudes about issues related to major party performance I draw three major conclusions from this analysis First racial group interests remain powerfully important across all cohorts Next the Hip Hop generation tends to hold more conservative attitudes than either the Civil Rights or the Integration generations Finally I conclude that at the very core of black politics political values have not changed However there is a tension among the Hip Hop cohort between the impending attitudinal changes and the more traditional values of the Civil Rights cohort The proposed dissertation contributes to the body of research by analyzing generational politics and behavior to better understand the future of black politics in the 21st century Gaining Voice Christopher J. Clark,2019-02-25 Scholars studying the causes and consequences of political representation particularly in terms of gender and race often turn to a concept called descriptive representation Descriptive representation tells us the degree to which elected officials resemble their constituents and whether such a resemblance has a bearing on the way they legislate In other words do people vote for candidates of their same racial ethnic background or gender If they do does this affect the type of policies an elected official pursues Further if citizens see people who look like them in office does it have an effect on their political attitudes and participation In this book Christopher J Clark argues that descriptive representation is a more multi faceted phenomenon than previously shown particularly when observed at the state level He contends that black political involvement political attitudes and public opinion are contingent on more than being represented by a single black elected official Rather they hinge on the proportion of African Americans making up a state legislature what Clark terms black seat share as well as the degree to which that proportion reflects the demographic makeup of the state As well Clark pinpoints the critical mass of African American legislators necessary to initiate the creation of black caucuses an important institution for minority representation Clark bases his study on an examination of black representation in state legislatures between 1966 and 2010 looking particularly at black political opinion and involvement in the development of welfare and education policy

Key Dimensions of Black Political Ideology Lakeyta Monique Bonnette,2009 Abstract There is very little empirical research completed on the connection of rap music to ideology Similarly extensive research on rap and gender or Black Nationalist ideology and gender is also lacking Research on rap music focuses on various aspects of rap qualitatively and quantitatively These studies have included topics as wide as rap as a form of information exchange the psychological effects of rap on perceptions of women and the effects of rap on propensity for violent behavior However the quantitative research on the affects of rap on political attitude formation or acceptance is very limited This dissertation broadens the current research by considering the impact of political rap music on the acceptance and support of Black Nationalist ideology This dissertation examines if political rap has an impact on the support of Black Nationalism while exploring the differences of this acceptance between gender and other demographic characteristics This study utilizes a multi method approach combining experimental research and survey data Using data from the 1993 1994 National Black Politics Study the findings demonstrate a relationship between exposure to rap and support of Black Nationalist ideology Specifically these results display that those who listen to rap have a higher significant relationship with Black Nationalist than those who do not listen to rap Overall there exist relationships between support of Black Nationalist sentiment age listening to rap and gender Experiments demonstrate causal relationships between political rap music and the formation of Black Nationalist attitudes Specifically Chapter Four details that listening to political rap lead to increased support of Black Nationalism compared to listening to pop music mainstream rap or listening to no music at all The study also includes content analysis that illustrates specific nationalist messages that displayed in political rap lyrics This research expands the knowledge of public opinion and continues the debate about the voice of information networks and popular culture on the formation of political attitudes For instance in public opinion research it is often assumed that the public does not have consistent and stable opinions or attitudes about most political issues Essentially many political analysts believe that the majority of Americans are uninformed This study speaks to this literature by establishing a direct connection between popular music specifically political rap and attitude formation Race, Class, and Culture Robert Charles Smith, Richard Seltzer (Ph. D.), 1992-01-01 Race is arguably the most profound and enduring cleavage in American society and politics This book examines the sources and dynamics of the race cleavage in American society through a detailed analysis of intergroup and intragroup differences at the level of mass opinion The ethclass theory which examines the intersection of ethnicity and class is used to analyze interracial differences in mass attitudes This analysis yields three clusters of opinion that distinguish African Americans from whites religiosity interpersonal alienation and political liberalism The authors then examine the intragroup sources of these opinion differences among blacks in terms of class gender age region and religion While the authors demonstrate an embryonic trend of more black middle class opinion agreement with whites the book confirms the ethclass character of the black experience whereby race and race consciousness are still more significant than class in shaping black attitudes Given the growing class bifurcation in black America and the continuing debate about its significance in shaping black attitudes and behavior this book offers a refreshing new analysis of the homogeneity as well as heterogeneity of black mass public opinion
