Black British Writing Lauri Ramey, 2004-09-03 This collection of essays provides an imaginative international perspective on ways to incorporate black British writing and culture in the study of

English literature and presents theoretically sophisticated and practical strategies for doing so It offers a pedagogical pragmatic and ideological introduction to the field for those without background and an integrated body of current and stimulating essays for those who are already knowledgeable Contributors to this volume include scholars and writers from Britain and the U S Following on recent developments in African American literature postcolonial studies and race studies the contributors invite readers to imagine an enhanced and inclusive British canon through varied essays providing historical information critical analysis cultural perspective and extensive annotated bibliographies for further study

Writing Black Britain 1948-1998 James Proctor, 2000-09-02 Brings together a diverse range of black British literatures essays and documents from across the post war period includes South Asian African and Caribbean cultural production by both leading and lesser known artists critics and commentators accommodates popular and high cultural materials from across the disciplines of literature film photography history sociology politics Marxism feminism cultural and communications studies

Publisher Encyclopedia of Post-Colonial Literatures in English Eugene Benson, 2004-11-30 Documents the history and development of Post colonial literatures in English together with English and American literature and includes original research relating to the literatures of some 50 countries and territories In more than 1 600 entries written by more than 600 internationally recognized scholars it explores the effect of the colonial and post colonial experience on literatures in English worldwide

Cultural Migrations and Gendered Subjects Silvia Castro-Borrego, Maria Isabel Romero Ruiz, 2011-01-18 The present volume explores through cultural and literary representations the contributions of women to the construction of knowledge in an ever changing global world as migrant subjects The essays contained in this book also focus on the female body as a site of physical violence and abuse fighting prevalent stereotypes about women s representations and identities This collection intends to enter a forum of discussion in which the colonial past serves as a point of reference for the analysis of contemporary issues Women s strategies for building possible identities are seen to be based on their own experiences seeking the ways in which the public marking and marketing of the female body within the western male imaginary contributes to the making of women s social and personal identities The different articles contained in this volume examine issues of gender and boundaries the realities of women as colonial and postcolonial subjects and darker realities such as alienation and discrimination as a result of migration racism and colonization analysed through a variety of critical perspectives The gendered raced classed dimensions and mixed heritages not only of white women but also of women of the African Diaspora these are important issues for the construction of knowledge and identity in our present multicultural societies and can potentially change the ways we conceptualize situate and engage the humanities in our scholarly work and in our social and cultural policies These women their presumed sexuality and their capacity to produce hybrid subjects as well as their supposed irrationality make them a singularly disruptive figure in our contemporary world this interpretation has its roots in the treatment of women in colonial times especially when they were out of the margins of respectable society

The volume is addressed to a wide readership both scholarly and those interested in investigating the dynamics of the social and cultural conceptualizations of our multicultural and multiethnic contemporary societies marked by the intercultural exchanges of migratory subjects from a gender perspective

Debating the Slave Trade Srividhya Swaminathan, 2016-05-13 How did the arguments developed in the debate to abolish the slave trade help to construct a British national identity and character in the late eighteenth century Srividhya Swaminathan examines books pamphlets and literary works to trace the changes in rhetorical strategies utilized by both sides of the abolitionist debate Framing them as competing narratives engaged in defining the nature of the Briton Swaminathan reads the arguments of pro and anti abolitionists as a series of dialogues among diverse groups at the center and peripheries of the empire Arguing that neither side emerged triumphant Swaminathan suggests that the Briton who emerged from these debates represented a synthesis of arguments and that the debates to abolish the slave trade are marked by rhetorical transformations defining the image of the Briton as one that led naturally to nineteenth century imperialism and a sense of global superiority Because the slave trade debates were waged openly in print rather than behind the closed doors of Parliament they exerted a singular influence on the British public At their height between 1788 and 1793 publications numbered in the hundreds spanned every genre and circulated throughout the empire Among the voices represented are writers from both sides of the Atlantic in dialogue with one another such as key African authors like Ignatius Sancho Phillis Wheatley and Olaudah Equiano West India planters and merchants and Quaker activist Anthony Benezet Throughout Swaminathan offers fresh and nuanced readings that eschew the view that the abolition of the slave trade was inevitable or that the ultimate defeat of pro slavery advocates was absolute

African-British Writings in the Eighteenth Century Helena Woodard, 1999-01-30 The eighteenth century was a time of great cultural change in Britain It was a period of exploration in which adventurers journeyed to the New World Africa and the Orient and these voyages were reflected in contemporary travel literature It was also a period in which seventeenth century empiricism and the scientific method became dominant and in which society became increasingly secular Fundamental to the eighteenth century worldview was the prominence of the Great Chain of Being in which all creatures and their Creator stood in a hierarchical relationship to one another With voyages to Africa becoming more common blacks were brought to Britain as slaves These Africans living in Britain sometimes wrote about their place in society and Whites debated the place of the black slaves within the hierarchy of the universe This book examines representations of blacks in British literature to illuminate how society viewed blacks during the eighteenth century Included are discussions of major canonical writers such as Pope Swift and Sterne along with discussions of works by African British writers such as James Albert Ukawsaw Gronniosaw Quobna Ottobah Cugoano Olaudah Equiano and Mary Prince
