The Great Battles of the British Navy Charles Rathbone Low, 1872 The British Navy in Battle (English Version) Arthur H. Pollen, 2017-08-22 There is now only one theatre of the war and in this the issue of civilization or barbarism must be decided by military action The event depends upon the capacity of the sea power of the Allies to deliver in France all the fighting men and all the war material that Allied ships can draw from Asia from Australia from South America from the United States and from Canada and then deliver either directly into France or first into British ports and then from Britain into France To beat the German Army is ultimately a problem in sea communications The whole of these have to pass through the bottle neck of the Western end of the Atlantic lanes Into an area south of Ireland and north of Ushant a hundred miles square every ship that comes from the Mediterranean from the Cape from Buenos Ayres Rio the West Indies or the Gulf of Mexico from the Atlantic seaboard of America must come

The British Navy at War William Macneile Dixon, 1917 The British Navy in Battle Arthur H. POLLEN, 2017-04-12 A Greeting by Way of Dedication Xmas 1915 To the Admirals Captains Officers and Men of the Royal Navy and of the Royal Naval Reserve To the men of the merchant service and the landsmen who have volunteered for work afloat To all who are serving or fighting for their country at sea To all naval officers who are serving much against their will on land Greetings good wishes and gratitude from all landsmen We do not wish you a Merry Christmas for to none of us neither to you at sea nor to us on land can Christmas be a merry season now Nor amid so much misery and sorrow does it seem at first sight reasonable to carry the conventional phrase further and wish you a Happy New Year But happiness is a different thing from merriment In the strictest sense of the word you are happy in your great task and we doubly and trebly

happy in the security that your great duties so finely discharged confer So after all it is a Happy New Year that we wish you If you could have your wish you of the Grand Fleet 4well we can guess what it would be It is that the war would so shape itself as to force the enemy fleet out and make it put its past work and its once high hopes to the test against the power which you command and use with all the skill your long vigil and faithful service have made so singly yours to day And in one sense and for your sakes because your glory would be somehow lessened if it did not happen we too could wish that this could happen But we wish it only because you do Although you do not grumble though we hear no fretful word we realize how wearing and how wearying your ceaseless watch must be It is a watchfulness that could not be what it is unless you hoped and indeed more than hoped expected that the enemy must early or late prove your readiness to meet him either seeking you or letting you find him in a High Seas fight of ship to ship and man to man We like you look forward to such a time with no misgiving as to the result though unlike you we dread the price in noble lives and gallant ships that even an overwhelming victory may cost Your hopes and expectation for this dreadful but glorious end to all your work do not date from August eighteen months ago When as little boys you went to the Britannia you went drawn there by the magic of the sea It was not the sea that carries the argosies of fabled wealth it was not the sea of yachts and pleasure boats It was the sea that had been ruled so proudly by your fathers that drew you And you as the youngest of the race went to it as the heirs to a stern and noble heritage So almost from the nursery have you been vowed to a life of hardship and of self denial of peril and of poverty a fitting apprenticeship for those who were destined to bear themselves so nobly in the day of strain and battle To the mission confided to you in boyhood you have been true in youth and true in manhood

A History of the Royal Navy: World War I Mike Farquharson-Roberts,2014-07-30 World War I is one of the iconic conflicts of the modern era For many years the war at sea has been largely overlooked yet at the outbreak of that war the British Government had expected and intended its military contribution to be largely naval This was a war of ideologies fought by and for empires Britain was not defending simply an island it was defending a far flung empire Without the navy such an undertaking would have been impossible In many respects the Royal Navy fought along the longest front of any fighting force of the Great War and it acted as the leader of a large alliance of navies The Royal Navy fought in the North and South Atlantic in the North and South Pacific its ships traversed the globe from Australia to England and its presence extended the war to every continent except Antarctica Because of the Royal Navy Britain could finance and resource not only its own war effort but that of its allies Following the naval arms race in the early 20th century both Britain and Germany were equipped with the latest naval technology including revolutionary new vessels such as dreadnoughts and diesel powered submarines Although the Royal Navy's operations in World War I were global a significant proportion of the fleet's strength was concentrated in the Grand Fleet which confronted the German High Seas Fleet across the North Sea At the Battle of Jutland in 1916 the Royal Navy under the command of Admiral Jellicoe fought an iconic if inconclusive battle for control of shipping routes The navy might not have been able to win the war but as Winston Churchill put it she could lose it in an afternoon The Royal Navy was British power and prestige 43 244 British navy personnel would lose their lives fighting on the seas in World War I This book tells their story and places the Royal Navy back at the heart of the British war effort showing that without the naval dimension the First World War would not have been a truly global conflict
