British Barrows A Matter Of Life And Death:

British Barrows Ann Woodward,2000 Prehistoric barrows were not only monuments to the dead but mounds for the living making out land defining pathways acting as powerful symbols and forming a major part of perceived landscapes which welded nature and human history together

Cremation and the Archaeology of Death Jessica Cerezo-Román,Anna Wessman,Howard Williams,2017-04-14 The fiery transformation of the dead is replete in our popular culture and Western modernity's death ways and yet it is increasingly evident how little this disposal method is understood by archaeologists and students of cognate disciplines in the humanities and social sciences In this regard the archaeological study of cremation has much to offer Cremation is a fascinating and widespread theme and entry point in the exploration of the variability of mortuary practices among past societies Seeking to challenge simplistic narratives of cremation in the past and present the studies in this volume seek to confront and explore the challenges of interpreting the variability of cremation by contending with complex networks of modern allusions and imaginings of cremations past and present and ongoing debates regarding how we identify and interpret cremation in the archaeological record Using a series of original case studies the book investigates the archaeological traces of cremation in a varied selection of prehistoric and historic contexts from the Mesolithic to the present in order to explore cremation from a practice oriented and historically situated perspective

Excavations at King's Low and Queen's Low Gary Lock,Dick Spicer,Wilson Hollins,2014-03-15 Two barrows in the parish of Tixall north of Stafford were excavated between 1986 1994 The results are important because little excavation of round barrows has been carried out in this area of North Staffordshire and these add considerably to the local corpus of knowledge concerning Early Bronze Age burial practices

Orientation of Prehistoric Monuments in Britain: A Reassessment Alistair Marshall,2021-07-08 Reassesses major axial alignment at many megalithic ritual and funerary monuments Neolithic to Bronze Age in Britain and Ireland not in terms of abstract astronomical concerns but as an expression of repeated seasonal propitiation involving community agrarian economy and ancestry in an attempt to mitigate variable environmental conditions

Grave Goods Anwen Cooper,Duncan Garrow,Catriona Gibson,Melanie Giles,Neil Wilkin,2021-12-22 Britain is internationally renowned for the high quality and exquisite crafting of its later prehistoric grave goods c 4000 BC to AD 43 Many of prehistoric Britain's most impressive artefacts have come from graves Interred with both inhumations and cremations they provide some of the most durable and well preserved insights into personal identity and the prehistoric life course yet they also speak of the care shown to the dead by the living and of people's relationships with things Objects matter This book's title is an intentional play on words These are objects in burials but they are also goods material culture that must be taken seriously Within it we outline the results of the first long term large scale investigation into grave goods during this period which enables a new level of understanding of mortuary practice and material culture throughout this major period of technological innovation and social transformation Analysis is structured at a series of different scales ranging from macro scale patterning across Britain to regional explorations of continuity and change to site specific histories of practice to micro scale analysis of specific graves and the individual objects and people within them We bring these different scales of analysis together in the first ever book focusing specifically on objects and death in later prehistoric Britain Focusing on six key case study regions the book innovatively synthesises antiquarian reports research projects and developer funded excavations At the same time it also engages with and develops a number of recent theoretical trends within archaeology including personhood object biography and materiality ensuring that it will be of relevance right across the discipline Its subject matter will also resonate with those working in anthropology sociology museology and other areas where death burial and the role of material culture in people s lives are key contemporary issues

People of the Long Barrows Martin Smith, Megan Brickley, 2009 This volume looks at the history of the study of human remains and how new scientific techniques have massively expanded what we know about our Neolithic ancestors Close to the Edge: Excavations of Five Cornish Coastal Barrows Andy M. Jones, 2024-12-12 A report of recent excavation of five Early Bronze Age barrows undertaken by Cornwall Archaeological Unit All are complex monuments revealing episodes of remodelling and reuse Despite being broadly comparable with similar radiocarbon determinations there are major differences in both the form and intensity of activity between the barrows

The Antiquaries Journal, 2010 Monuments of the British Neolithic Miles Russell, 2002 Transactions of the Cumberland & Westmorland Antiquarian & Archeological Society Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian and Archaeological Society, 2008 List of members included in each volume except v 1 The Archaeological Journal, 2014 Proceedings of the Prehistoric Society Prehistoric Society (London, England), 2010 Celtic from the West 3 John T. Koch, Barry Cunliffe, 2016-09-01 The Celtic languages and groups called Keltoi i e Celts emerge into our written records at the pre Roman Iron Age The impetus for this book is to explore from the perspectives of three disciplines archaeology genetics and linguistics the background in later European prehistory to these developments There is a traditional scenario according to which Celtic speech and the associated group identity came in to being during the Early Iron Age in the north Alpine zone and then rapidly spread across central and western Europe This idea of Celtogenesis remains deeply entrenched in scholarly and popular thought But it has become increasingly difficult to reconcile with recent discoveries pointing towards origins in the deeper past It should no longer be taken for granted that Atlantic Europe during the 2nd and 3rd millennia BC were pre Celtic or even pre Indo European The explorations in Celtic from the West 3 are drawn together in this spirit continuing two earlier volumes in the influential series

Journal of the Derbyshire Archaeological and Natural History Society, 2001 A Neolithic and Bronze Age Landscape in Northamptonshire Jan Harding, Frances Healy, 2007 This publication presents the pre Iron Age aspects of the Raunds Area Project which between 1985 and 1993 investigated some 3.5km of the floor of the Nene valley in north east Northamptonshire A Forged Glamour Melanie Giles, 2013-01-10 A Forged Glamour which takes its title from a poem is an exploration of the lives and deaths of ironworking communities renowned for their spectacular material culture who lived in modern day East and North Yorkshire between the 4th and 1st centuries BC It evaluates settlement and funerary evidence analyses farming and craftwork and explores what some of their ideas and beliefs might have been It situates this regional material within the broader context of Iron Age Britain Ireland and the near Continent and considers what manner of society this was In order to do this it makes use of theoretical ideas on personhood and relationships with material culture and landscape arguing that the making of identity always takes work It is the character scale and extent of this work revealed through objects as small as a glass bead or as big as a cemetery as local as an earthenware pot or as exotic as coral decoration which enables archaeologists to investigate the web of relations which made up their lives and explore the means of power which distinguished their leaders In the Shadow of the Galtees Melanie McQuade, Bernice Molloy, Colm Moriarty, 2009 The Archaeology of Kent to AD 800 John H. Williams, 2007 Kent's proximity to the European mainland has meant that it has always had a special relationship with its continental neighbours At times this has been a positive force with Kent a conduit for trade and new ideas but on other occasions the white cliffs of Dover have symbolised defiance with Kent being in the front line in the defence of England The result has been an extremely rich archaeological heritage from Palaeolithic times onwards The opening up of the Channel Tunnel and the construction of the associated high speed railway line linking England and France together with major development activity associated with an agenda for regeneration and economic growth has resulted in unprecedented archaeological activity which has revolutionised our understanding of Kent's earlier past The contributors to this volume all of whom have specialist research interests in Kent have combined established wisdom with the fresh information from recent work to create a new and exciting story Contributors TIMOTHY CHAMPION MARTIN MILLETT MARTIN WELCH AND FRANCIS WENBAN SMITH Interpreting the Landscape from the Air Michael Aston, 2002 With the help of 200 colour photographs the chief archaeologist from Channel 4's Time Team shows how England's changing landscape from prehistoric times to the present day can be interpreted from the air Neolithic and Bronze Age Landscapes of Cumbria Helen Evans, 2008 In 1933 R G Collingwood forwarded a four headed approach for the advancement of knowledge of Cumbrian prehistory office work fieldwork excavation and publication The office work included three main tasks The first task the cataloguing and classification of sites and finds This present study draws on Collingwood's ideas in a number of ways not least in that in order to interpret Cumbria's prehistoric record at a regional scale it has been necessary to analyse and interpret many disparate strands of evidence Only through setting out and discussing previously available evidence and adding to it through new fieldwork and excavation is it possible to construct then forward an holistic and integrated regional sequence in line with contemporary academic schema The analyses undertaken for this study have included the examination of environmental data the collection and characterisation of lithic scatters interpretation of the distributions settings and architecture of monuments and the analysis of burial and depositional practices Chapter one provides an introduction to Cumbrian landscapes and demonstrates the need for a regional approach towards the county's prehistoric record. Drawing on the use of theoretically informed landscape perspectives in the interpretation of prehistoric occupation, chapter two sets out the methodological and interpretative frameworks forming the basis of this study. Chapter three outlines the character and distribution of environmental and lithic data and develops a model of the likely nature of land use and occupation; these represent Chapter four introduces the monument record and outlines methodological approaches to particular monument types. Chapter five discusses the classification and interpretation of stone circles and chapter six interprets the character and distribution of all Neolithic and Early Bronze Age monuments. Analysis of the landscape settings of monuments, chapter seven and evidence for burial and deposition, chapter eight illustrate the social and geographical scales at which communities operated over the Neolithic and Bronze Age and how they drew on and appropriated aspects of the natural world. Demonstrating the articulation of themes discussed in earlier chapters, chapter nine takes the form of an integrated case study of occupation, monument use and depositional practice across the Furness Peninsula. The final chapter discusses the nature and identification of regional traditions, forwards an integrated regional narrative and concludes with suggestions for further work.
