War Plans and Alliances in the Cold War Vojtech Mastny,Sven S. Holtzmark,Andreas Wenger,2013-04-15 This essential new volume reviews the threat perceptions military doctrines and war plans of both the NATO alliance and the Warsaw Pact during the Cold War as well as the position of the neutrals from the post Cold War perspective Based on previously unknown archival evidence from both East and West the twelve essays in the book focus on the potential European battlefield rather than the strategic competition between the superpowers They present conclusions about the nature of the Soviet threat that could previously only be speculated about and analyze the interaction between military matters and politics in the alliance management on both sides with implications for the present crisis of the Western alliance This new book will be of much interest for students of the Cold War strategic history and international relations history as well as all military colleges

Rising Titans, Falling Giants Joshua R. Itzkowitz Shifrinson,2018-09-15 As a rising great power flexes its muscles on the political military scene it must examine how to manage its relationships with states suffering from decline and it has to do so in a careful and strategic manner In Rising Titans Falling Giants Joshua R Itzkowitz Shifrinson focuses on the policies that rising states adopt toward their declining competitors in response to declining states policies and what that means for the relationship between the two Rising Titans

Falling Giants integrates disparate approaches to realism into a single theoretical framework provides new insight into the sources of cooperation and competition in international relations and offers a new empirical treatment of great power politics at the start and end of the Cold War Shifrinson challenges the existing historical interpretations of diplomatic history particularly in terms of the United States China relationship Whereas many analysts argue that these two nations are on a collision course Shifrinson declares instead that rising states often avoid antagonizing those in decline and highlights episodes that suggest the US China relationship may prove to be far less conflict prone than we might expect No Exit

James McAllister,2018-09-05 James McAllister outlines a new account of early Cold War history one that focuses on the emergence of a bipolar structure of power the continuing importance of the German question and American efforts to create a united Western Europe Challenging the conventional wisdom among both international relations theorists and Cold War historians McAllister argues that America s central objective from the Second World War to the mid 1950s was to create a European order that could be peaceful and stable without requiring the permanent presence of American ground forces on the continent The permanent presence of American forces in Europe is often seen as a lesson that policymakers drew from the disastrous experiences of two world wars but McAllister s archival research reveals that both FDR and Eisenhower as well as influential strategists such as George Kennan did not draw this lesson In the short term American power was necessary to balance the Soviet Union and reassure Western Europe about the revival of German power but America s long term objective was to create the conditions under which Western Europe could take care of both of these problems on their own In the author s view the key element of this strategy was the creation of the European Defense Community If Western Germany could be successfully integrated and rearmed within the context of the EDC Western Europe would have taken the most important step to becoming a superpower on par with the United States and the Soviet Union Understanding why this strategy was pursued and why it failed McAllister asserts has important implications for both international relations theory and contemporary questions of American foreign policy The Journal of Military History ,1996 Strategic

Management of Military Capabilities ,2013 In preparing for the future which is the core exercise of strategic management it is essential for a country to anticipate and assess various risks that could arise and to realize disruptive innovations ahead of others that would reverse the position of advantage between their country and others The possible ways to accomplish these goals would include investing limited resources selectively and intensively into areas expected to grow in the future procuring from abroad resources that are too scarce domestically for achieving declared goals and deliberately establishing a system that would make an organization and its functions change daily in order to speedily cope with changes in environment and competitive conditions This expertise is already established in the study of management how to apply it to processes of operating military organizations and of setting military strategies are the themes of strategic management valuable comparative examination of the state of transatlantic relations The comparative approach utilized highlights the often understudied differences in perception and policy that exist across European and North American states towards the idea and practice of the transatlantic relationship Royal Historical Society Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History Royal Historical Society (Great Britain),1997 The Royal Historical Society s Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History provides a comprehensive and authoritative survey of books and articles on historical topics published in a single calendar year The volume covers all periods of British and Irish history from Roman Britain to the late twentieth century and also includes a section on imperial and commonwealth history It is the most complete and up to date bibliography of its type and an indispensable tool for historians The Fifty-year War Norman Friedman,2000 Did the West win or did inherent flaws doom the Soviet system from the start BOOK JACKET Journal of the Society for Army Historical Research Society for Army Historical Research (London, England),1995 The Cumulative Book Index ,1996 A world list of books in the English language Historical Abstracts Eric H.
