British New Towns A Programme Without A Policy:

The British New Towns Meryl Aldridge, 2017-10-12 First published in 1979 Concern about the processes at work in Britain's urban areas coupled with steep declines in the population projections led to a review of urban and regional policies in the mid 1970s with major implications for the new towns as an element of national policy The various stages and the conclusions of this re appraisal are discussed and the new towns role in the supposed urban crisis is analysed This title will be of interest to students of urban studies and development

Lessons from the British and French New Towns David Fée, Bob Colenutt, Sabine Coady Schäbitz, 2020-11-18 This book explores the evolution of New Towns in France and the UK in a number of areas governance planning and heritage and assess whether their legacy can inspire current planned settlements

Unshared Care Caroline Glendinning, 1983 The vast majority of the 100 000 or so children with serious mental or physical disabilities in Britain today live at home with their families A series of in depth interviews carried out with a number of parents enabled the author to describe the extensive physical practical and emotional demands made on those looking after their disabled child at home In their own words parents report how and when they learnt about their child's disability the sheer physical work and mental effort of daily care which more often than not fall unremittingly on the child's mother the feelings of isolation and the lack of information which are often relieved only by talking with parents of other disabled children Unshared Care examines the community services available revealing that from the parents point of view the rhetoric of public concern is only barely matched by the practical support available It shows that services are all too often insufficiently specialized and lacking in coherence
