Citizens Politicians And Providers:

Citizens, Politicians, and Providers Ariel Fiszbein,2005-01-01 This document aims to provide guidance to policymakers and development practitioners on how to shape public action to get better quality services for all in Latin America Latin American countries have seen significant progress in the last 20 years in the coverage of social and infrastructure services However coverage gaps and poor quality of services remain a serious problem for many citizens particularly the poor While technical difficulties may still be a constraint for some sophisticated services they are clearly not a difficulty for the most essential ones Understanding questions of access and quality of services is about the behaviors of people from teachers to administrators politicians and rich and poor citizens The main concern is whether those responsible for designing and delivering services are accountable to the citizens who are demanding the services and also paying the taxes and fees that finance these services Citizens, Politicians, and Providers ,2005 Making services work for poor people World Bank,

Improving Public Services Douglas J. Besharov,Karen J. Baehler,Jacob Alex Klerman,2017 This volume spotlights recent advances in the worldwide use of quantitative performance measures in the public sector especially approaches that incorporate program evaluation techniques Chapters include single country case studies multi country comparisons and thoughtful essays on the challenges of making performance measurement and management work in diverse settings

Making Politics Work for Development World Bank,2016-07-14 Governments fail to provide the public goods needed for development when its leaders knowingly and deliberately ignore sound technical advice or are unable to follow it despite the best of intentions because of political constraints This report focuses on two forces citizen engagement and transparency that hold the key to solving government failures by shaping how political markets function Citizens are not only queuing at voting booths but are also taking to the streets and using diverse media to pressure sanction and select the leaders who wield power within government including by entering as contenders for leadership This political engagement can function in highly nuanced ways within the same formal institutional context and across the political spectrum from autocracies to democracies Unhealthy political engagement when leaders are selected and sanctioned on the basis of their provision of private benefits rather than public goods gives rise to government failures The solutions to these failures lie in fostering healthy political engagement within any institutional context and not in circumventing or suppressing it Transparency which is citizen access to publicly available information about the actions of those in government and the consequences of these actions can play a crucial role by nourishing political engagement Making Services Work for Poor People Shantayanan Devarajan,World Bank,2003 The World Development Report 2004 Investigates How Countries Can Accelerate Progress Towards The Millennium Development Goals Mdgs By Making Services Work For Poor People Too Often The Delivery Of Services Falls Far Short Of What Could Be Achieved Du To Issues Such As Weak Incentives For Performance Corruption Imperfect Monitoring And Administrative Logjams Some Countires Have Addressed The Problem By Involving Poor People In

Accountability and Neo-patrimonialism in Cambodia Pak Kimchoeun,Vuthy Horng,2007 Achieving Better Service Delivery Through Decentralization in Ethiopia Marito Garcia,Andrew Sunil Rajkumar,2008 Ethiopia has made major strides in improving its human development indicators in the past 15 years achieving significant increases in the coverage of basic education and health services in a short period of time Improvements took place during a period of massive decentralization of fiscal resources to the regions in 1994 and to woredas in 2002 03 The devolution of power and resources from the federal and regional governments to woredas appears to have improved the delivery of basic services Surveys of beneficiaries reveal that they perceive that service coverage and quality have improved

The New Politics of State Health Policy Robert B. Hackey,David A. Rochefort,2001 State governments in the past decade have had to take on the problem of health care with mixed results This collection of 11 essays of which two are an introduction and conclusion by academics and policy makers consider the many issues that concern health care in the US and their effects at the state level including managed care health insurance expansion mental health care public health administration and bureaucratic reactions to health policy Hackey teaches health policy and management at Providence College in Rhode Island Rochefort teaches political science and public administration at Northeastern U in Boston c Book News Inc

Annual Development Review ,2005 Critical Pluralism, Democratic Performance, and Community Power Paul Schumaker,1991 Who governs is a central question in political science Typically political scientists address this question by relying upon either empirical analysis which explains existing political practices or normative analysis which describes ideal political practices

Privatisation of Water Services in Kenyan Local Authorities Patrick O. Asingo,2005 Institutional Development and Transition Asya El-Meehy,2013 Have Arab uprisings opened space for deeper grassroots driven decentralization reforms in the region What are the optimum designs sequencing and models of decentralization for countries in political transition While political discourse in the region uniformly emphasizes reforming State institutions decentralization reform agendas have unfolded along contrasting trajectories across Arab transition countries Both contextual and historical dynamics seem to shape visions for the orientation and pace of decentralization reforms as well as the empirical feasibility of shifting power relations among the various tiers of State administration Drawing on findings from field research and recent analyses this study argues that uprisings have created stronger momentum for revisiting the question of decentralization reforms in Libya and Yemen where the very nature of the State is being redefined compared to the cases of Egypt and Tunisia where all stakeholders agree on preserving the unitary State model In the latter cases while there is evidence that new advocacy movements focused on reforming local government structures have emerged they have thus far remained elite led Grassroots activism at local community levels has served to empower new actors who in some cases have been successful at extracting concessions from local authorities. These efforts however predominantly focus on improving access to public services within the existing context of centralized State structures and seem often to have failed to gain the trust of local community members as potential partners in local governance. Building on focus group discussions among working class residents in Greater Cairo and on interviews with Egyptian political elites, the study highlights an emerging critical gap between youth expectations and on the other hand the envisioned plans of the political elite. While youth are more likely to demand deeper reforms across all three dimensions of decentralization administrative, fiscal and political, political elites disagree not only on which particular dimension s of reforms should be implemented but also on the urgency of decentralization during early phases of political transformation. The latter s wide range of views reflect deep concerns over political capture by traditional elites, weakness of political parties as well as potentially detrimental impacts of reforms on State capacity and the nation State s territorial integrity. The study concludes by drawing lessons from France s successful contract based record of decentralization and presents policy recommendations for countries that have emerged from the Arab uprisings with relatively strong centralized State structures and cohesive national identities.

Publisher s description The Tribune Almanac and Political Register ,1899 Citizens and Health Care Barry Checkoway,1981 "Systems and Services for the Citizen" Synopses of Research Projects ,2002 Chronic Politics Philip J. Funigiello,2005

Funigiello unlocks the puzzle of why the United States has never guaranteed its citizens health security comparable to that enjoyed by people of other first world nations and he tells what needs to happen for policy reform to take place. Examining specific episodes in the history of health care financing he highlights the importance of key individuals in the legislative process, the political haggling involved in shaping a bill, the clash of personalities and agendas that determines its fate and the extent to which American ideas about fairness are reflected in the result.

BOOK JACKET On Feminist Ethics and Politics Claudia Card,1999

For years mainstream feminist ethics focused criticism on male supremacy. Feminist philosophers in this volume adopt a less male focused stance to look closely at oppression s impact on women s agency and on women s relations with women. Examining legal, social and physical relationships, these philosophers confront moral ambiguity, moral compromise and complicity in perpetuating oppression. Combining personal experience with philosophical inquiry, they vividly portray their daily engagement with oppression as both victims and perpetrators. They explore such issues as how pornography silences women and radical feminist politics, complicity in racism. Among these insightful essays, Sandra Bartky argues that women share guilt for racism when they benefit from it without protest. Susan Brison reflects on uses of narrative in trauma recovery from such experiences as being targeted for rape or murder. Joan Callahan examines fallout of derogatory speech directed at lesbians. Virginia Held proposes carrying care into marketplaces and governments and in her introduction, Claudia Card draws on Primo Levi s conception of gray zones in exploring dangers of character damage to victims of misogyny. A fitting companion to Card s highly regarded Feminist Ethics, this volume interweaves observations on character, political ethics, violence and love into an accessible sourcebook for students It tackles some of feminism s most pressing issues and helps readers to identify and then overcome the real damage caused by oppression The Puzzle of Latin American Economic Development Patrice Franko,2007-03 Provides the basic economic tools for students to understand the problems in the countries of Latin America This third edition analyzes challenges to the neoliberal model of development and highlights macroeconomic changes in the region It explores the contradictions of growth and focuses on factors of competitiveness

Institutions and Politics Peter Nedergaard,John L. Campbell,2008 For more than two decades Danish scholar Ove K Pedersen has been interpreting the Danish model of the political economy analyzing how it works and placing it in perspective against the economic models of other nations and changes in the world economy His vision of how a negotiated economy works has influenced international scholarship His studies of the response to globalization and the rise of neo liberalism shows how politics mediates the impact of economic developments This festschrift brings a distinguished set of international scholars together in a wide ranging tribute to Professor Pedersen s work The chapters take up themes of enduring importance bearing on the role of ideas in politics the roots of Danish economic success and modes of coordination in the political economy This timely book is published at a moment of great international interest in flexicurity and the achievements of the Danish model Its perspectives enrich the discussion of issues central to comparative political economy
