Citrus Strategy And Class Development In Southern Belize:

Citrus, Strategy, and Class Mark Moberg, 1992 Citrus Strategy and Class examines two decades of significant socioeconomic change in rural Belize. Mark Moberg draws on his extensive field research in two villages of Stann Creek district, supplementing and contrasting his findings with earlier ethnographic data from the same locales. The result is an unusual portrait of village societies in transition that documents the shifting basis of household economies from subsistence agriculture to citrus farming for export markets. With direct yet sophisticated prose, Moberg illustrates how the rural poor manipulate economic strategies and powerful outsiders as they become involved in production for the world market. In Silk Grass, where residents first planted citrus trees in the 1960s, the effects of world commodity markets were dramatically evident two decades later: increasing demand and escalating prices have enriched citrus farmers but pronounced stratification now crosscuts the once nearly egalitarian village. Residents of Hopkins, seeking to emulate the outward success of their neighbors, organized a cooperative to circumvent their income limitations and gain access to development grants. Now, given the cooperative's political basis and the stratifying effects of citrus production, social classes are rapidly supplanting factional divisions. Moberg employs early ethnographic accounts, household surveys from 1971 and 1986, and detailed life histories to analyze these socioeconomic changes from a longitudinal perspective, rare in community studies of rural development. He situates economic strategies within the constraints and incentives of world markets, national food and marketing policies, and local level politics. Examining the efforts of the rural poor to actively pursue their interests, Moberg documents their often successful efforts to define the local consequences of world markets. In contrast to other studies, Citrus Strategy and Class demonstrates that the outcome of development is defined as much by the agency of rural residents as it is by the state, powerful political actors, and an embracing world market. Moberg's conclusions will be relevant to anthropologists, economists, political scientists concerned with local level politics and factionalism, and development theorists and practitioners.

Colonialism and Resistance in Belize O. Nigel Bolland, 2003 The social history of Belize is marked by conflict between British settlers and the Maya, between masters and slaves, between capitalists and workers, and between the colonial administration and the Belizean people. This collection of essays analyzes the most important topics during three centuries of colonialism.

Women and the Ancestors Virginia Kerns, 1997 This classic study of Black Carib culture and its preservation through ancestral rituals, organized by older women, now includes a foreword by Constance R. Sutton and an afterword by the author. One of the outstanding studies of this genre, refreshingly, the book has good photographs as well as strong endnotes and bibliography, and very useful tables, figures, maps, and index. Choice. An outstanding contribution to the literature on female-centered bilateral kinship and residence.

Grant D. Jones, American Ethnologist. A richly detailed account of a contemporary culture in which older women are important, valued, and self-respecting. Anthropology and Humanism Quarterly. A combination of competent research, interwoven themes, and an easily readable, sometimes beautifully evocative prose style Heather Strange The Gerontologist From Colony to Nation Anne S. Macpherson, 2007-01-01 The first book on women's political history in Belize From Colony to Nation demonstrates that women were creators of and activists within the two principal political currents of twentieth century Belize colonial middle class reform and popular labor nationalism

Myths of Ethnicity and Nation Mark Moberg, 1997 In this study Mark Moberg examines the conflicts in Belize's ethnic and national identity by focusing on their effects and manifestations in the country's banana export industry Negotiating Heritage through Education and Archaeology Alicia Ebbitt McGill, 2021-08-17 Combining years of ethnographic research with British imperial archival sources this book reveals how cultural heritage has been negotiated by colonial independent state and community actors in Belize from the late nineteenth century to the present Home Cooking in the Global Village Richard Wilk, 2006-02-01 Winner of the Society for Economic Anthropology Annual Book Prize 2008 Belize a tiny corner of the Caribbean wedged into Central America has been a fast food nation since buccaneers and pirates first stole ashore As early as the 1600s it was already caught in the great paradox of globalization how can you stay local and relish your own home cooking while tasting the delights of the global marketplace Menus recipes and bad colonial poetry combine with Wilk's sharp anthropological insight to give an important new perspective on the perils and problems of globalization Banana Wars Steve Striffler, Mark Moberg, 2003-11-20 The history of banana cultivation and its huge impact on Latin American history politics and culture Southern Anthropological Society Proceedings Southern Anthropological Society, 1968 Nature and Progress in Rural Creole Belize Melissa A. Johnson, 1998 Belize Peggy Wright, Brian E. Coutts, 1993 Research Reports in Belizean History and Anthropology, 2015 Examining the Belize Audubon Society's Management of Protected Areas : a Project Submitted in Partial Fulfillment ... for the Degree of Master of Science of Natural Resources ..., 2000 International Journal of Contemporary Sociology, 1994 13 chapters of a history of Belize Assad Shoman, 1994 Ethno- and Historical Geographic Studies in Latin America William V. Davidson, 2008 Belizean Studies, 2001 Sixth Consultative Meeting on the Environment, 1995 Beyond Fragmentation Juanita De Barros, Audra Diptee, David Vincent Trotman, 2006 In this book leading scholars pull together some of the most recent research on the key themes of Caribbean history slavery the transition to freedom colonialism and decolonization Although all parts of the Caribbean experienced these phases the manner in which they did so differed significantly in part because of their distinct imperial histories Contemporary fragmentation and insularity have led to significant variations in the region's historiography The contributors examine the divergent historiographical and methodological developments in the British French Spanish and Dutch Caribbean By addressing these four linguistic areas of the Caribbean they aim to overcome the traditional differences imposed by language and in the process to explore hotly debated subjects and new directions in Caribbean scholarship Belizean Transnationalism Elizabeth Cooling Babcock, 2003
