of minor characters and sub plots in his entire canon The story is told partly by the novel s heroine Esther Summerson and partly by an omniscient narrator Memorable characters include the menacing lawyer Tulkinghorn the friendly but depressive John Jarndyce and the childish and disingenuous Harold Skimpole as well as the likeable but imprudent Richard Carstone Much criticism about Bleak House focuses on its unique narrative structure it is told both by an unidentified third person narrator and a first person narrator Esther Summerson The third person narrator speaks in the present tense ranging widely across geographic and social space from the aristocratic Dedlock estate to the desperately poor Tom All Alone s in London and gives full rein to Dickens s desire to satirize the English chancery system though this narrator s perceptiveness has limits stopping at the outside to describe characters appearances and behaviour without any pretence of grasping or revealing their inner lives Esther Summerson tells her own story in the past tense like David in David Copperfield or Pip in Great Expectations and her narrative voice is characterised by modesty consciousness of her own limits and willingness to disclose to us her own thoughts and feelings These two narrative strands almost never intersect but they do run in parallel Many scholars regard this narrative structure as the most complex and brilliant that Dickens ever created
