Prehistoric Pottery in Britain & Ireland Alexander Miles Gibson, 2002 British Pottery: The First 3000 Years Alex Gibson, 2024-12-15 First comprehensive account of the sequence development and use of early prehistoric pottery in over 20 years Pottery was at the heart of the Neolithic package appearing in Britain with the first farmers around 4000 BC It arrived as a mature technology and was essential to the new largely sedentary lifestyle and economy It transformed storage and cooking practices and the earliest ceramics seem to have been essential equipment in the new practice of dairying The pottery changed over time and as a result ceramics have been fundamental to the construction of relative chronologies since the early days of modern archaeology Even with the development of absolute dating techniques the role of pottery as a dating tool has not diminished but instead has become refined and more accurate But pottery is not just a tool for dating the past it also represents a facet of prehistoric art and expression Starting simply ceramics became arguably the main medium for display with often complex designs Simple techniques motifs and panels are combined to create highly decorated vessels often of great individuality The use of inlays pastes and slips added contrasting colours to these vibrant designs By the end of the Neolithic ceramics became one of the major grave goods of British prehistory acting as accompaniments to those that warranted formal burial whether by inhumation or cremation This practice continued throughout the Early Bronze Age to the extents that lacking contemporary domestic sites most of the corpora of Early Bronze Age ceramics are largely sepulchral in context As we increasingly realise that burial rituals may have been varied and complex so the roles of these ceramics are becoming all the more questioned This book traces the 3000 years of ceramic use and development in Britain charting the changing forms and decorative techniques and the differing and changing roles that pottery played within its contemporary society Prehistoric Britain Joshua Pollard,2008-06-23 Informed by the latest research and in depth analysis Prehistoric Britain provides students and scholars alike with a fascinating overview of the development of human societies in Britain from the Upper Paleolithic to the end of the Iron Age Offers readers an incisive synthesis and much needed overview of current research themes Includes essays from leading scholars and professionals who address the very latest trends in current research Explores the interpretive debates surrounding major transitions in British prehistory A Study of the Bronze Age Pottery of Great Britain & Ireland and Its Associated Grave-goods John Abercromby,1912 A Study of the Bronze Age Pottery of Great Britain and Ireland and its Associated Grave-Goods John Abercromby,2015-03-26 A two volume 1912 survey of British and Irish ceramics from the late Neolithic to the end of the Bronze Age Neolithic Impressed and Related Wares in Britain and Ireland Alistair Barclay,Alex Gibson,2025-12-19 Provides a comprehensive analysis of Middle Neolithic Impressed Ware pottery in Britain and Ireland exploring regional styles decoration and its national significance This next in the successful Neolithic Studies Group Seminar Papers series arises from the day conference held in November 2024 Following on from 2023 s Revisiting Grooved Ware volume it aims to provide an up to date analysis and synthesis of Middle Neolithic 3600 2900 BC pottery in Britain and Ireland that falls under the umbrella term of Impressed Ware The pottery represents the final expression of Early Neolithic carinated bowls which have evolved into highly decorated vessels using a variety of fibre animal bone and fingernail tip impressions to form their distinctive and extensive decoration The pottery is spread widely over Britain and Ireland with marked regionality as well as a contrasting degree of uniformity This has never before been studied in detail so this book will provide the first wide overview of Impressed Wares of both Britain and Ireland looking not just at regionality but also dating Radiocarbon dates are currently largely restricted to individual site assemblages but this book will bring together regional dates to present a national overview Following the format of the Grooved Ware volume this will be presented as a series of regional syntheses written by acknowledged experts in their field with a final chapter to draw together the first truly national consideration of this important ceramic tradition examining not just its origins its regional nuances of style but also its much debated legacy A Study of the Bronze Age Pottery of Great Britain and Ireland and Its Associated Grave-Goods 2 Volume Set John Abercromby,2015-02-24 A Popular Handbook to the Greek and Roman Antiquities in the British Museum British Museum.
