Ancient Ireland R.A.S. Macalister,2014-10-24

Archaeological evidence here is used to help build up a picture of the lives led by the people of which it is a record The contents include a description of primitive settlements leading up to an account of the art trade and civilization generally of early ages prior to the Celtic invasion and up to the end of Medieval times Two chapters take narratives from the time and analyse them against physical evidence and consider what they tell us alongside that information Many often overlooked facts are brought to the fore and special attention is paid to the overwhelming influence of climate in shaping human destiny Originally published in 1935 this book is as enlightening today Ancient Ireland. A Study in the Lessons of Archaeology and History. With ... Plates, Etc Robert Alexander Stewart Macalister,1935 The Origins of the Irish J. P.

Mallory,2013-03-25 An essential new history of ancient Ireland and the Irish written as an engrossing detective story About eighty million people today can trace their descent back to the occupants of Ireland But where did the occupants of the island themselves come from and what do we even mean by Irish in the first place This is the first major attempt to deal with the core issues of how the Irish came into being J P Mallory emphasizes that the Irish did not have a single origin but are a product of multiple influences that can only be tracked by employing the disciplines of archaeology genetics geology linguistics and mythology Beginning with the collision that fused the two halves of Ireland together the book traces Ireland's long journey through space and time to become an island The origins of its first farmers and their monumental impact on the island is followed by an exploration of how metallurgists in copper bronze and iron brought Ireland into increasingly wider orbits of European culture Assessments of traditional explanations of Irish origins are combined with the very latest genetic research into the biological origins of the Irish Churches in Early Medieval Ireland Tomás Ó Carragáin,2010 This is the first book devoted to churches in Ireland dating from the arrival of Christianity in the fifth century to the early stages of the Romanesque around 1100 including those built to house treasures of the golden age of Irish art such as the Book of Kells and the Ardagh chalice Carragáin's comprehensive survey of the surviving examples forms the basis for a far reaching analysis of why these buildings looked as they did and what they meant in the context of early Irish society Carragáin also identifies a clear political and ideological context for the first Romanesque churches in Ireland and shows that to a considerable extent the Irish Romanesque represents the perpetuation of a long established architectural tradition Ireland's First Settlers Peter Woodman,2015-12-31 Ireland's First Settlers tells the story of the archaeology and history of the first continuous phase of Ireland's human settlement It combines centuries of search and speculation about human antiquity in Ireland with a review of what is known today about the Irish Mesolithic This is in part provided in the context of the author's 50 years of personal experience searching to make sense of what initially appeared to be little more than a collection of beach rolled and battered flint tools The story is embedded in how the island of Ireland its position distinct landscape and ecology impacted on when and how Ireland was colonized It also explores how these first settlers evolved their technologies and lifeways to suit the narrow range of abundant resources that were available The volume concludes with discussions on how the landscape should be searched for the often ephemeral traces of these early settlers and how sites should be excavated It asks what we really know about the thoughts and life of the people themselves and what happened to them as farming began to be introduced

Touring Beyond the Nation: A Transnational Approach to European Tourism History Eric G.E. Zuelow,2016-12-05 When tourists travel they often seek the exotic The farther they venture the more unique the cultures they gaze upon the greater the prestige accrued cross cultural contact is commonplace Yet despite the obviously transnational character of the tourist experience national borders define existing studies of tourism Spanish French or German tourism is treated almost in isolation and there are only hints of a larger transnational impetus behind the creation of national tourism products This volume tells a different story Although modern tourism first evolved in Europe changes were never confined to national borders The Grand Tour the birthplace of modern tourism was consummately transnational in both its execution and its influence Although seaside resorts originated in Britain the aesthetic and scientific ideas that made beaches desirable emerged through conversation among Dutch painters English travellers and both British and Continental scientists and philosophers When travel was finally available to the masses Irish tourism advocates looked to England Continental Europe and America for ideas The Nazi leisure organization Strength through Joy KdF was based on an earlier Italian model the Dopolavoro World s Fair promoters raided previous fairs in other countries for ideas European wide demand and taste helped shape nudist practice in France and beyond At every turn practices and products developed because tourism lent itself to trans national discourse The contributors examine a wide range of topics that together make a powerful argument for the adoption of a new transnational model for understanding modern tourism An essential addition to the library of academics studying the history of tourism popular culture and leisure in Europe the book will also provide interest to scholars of transnational topics including Europeanization and globalization

The Cross Goes North Martin Carver,2005 37 studies of the adoption of Christianity across northern Europe over1000 years and the diverse reasons that drove the process In Europe the cross went north and east as the centuries unrolled from the Dingle Peninsula to Estonia and from the Alps to Lapland ranging in time from Roman Britain and Gaul in the third and fourth centuries to the conversion of peoples in the Baltic area a thousand years later These episodes of conversion form the basic narrative here History encourages the belief that the adoption of Christianity was somehow irresistible but specialists show the underside of the process by turning the spotlight from the missionaries who recorded their triumphs to the converted exploring their local situations and motives What were the reactions of the northern peoples to the Christian message Why would they wish to adopt it for the sake of its alliances In what way did they adapt the Christian ethos and infrastructure to suit their own community How did conversion affect the status of farmers of smiths of princes and of women Was society wholly changed or only in marginal matters of devotion and superstition These are the issues discussed here by thirty eight experts from across northern Europe some answers come from astute re readings of the texts alone but most are owed to a combination of history art history and archaeology working together MARTIN CARVER is Professor of Archaeology University of York Irish Books in Print & Leabhair Gaeilge i GCló ,1984 Coastal Landscapes of the Mesolithic Almut Schülke,2020-03-06 Coastal Landscapes of the Mesolithic Human Engagement with the Coast from the Atlantic to the Baltic Sea explores the character and significance of coastal landscapes in the Mesolithic on different scales and with various theoretical perspectives and methodological approaches Mesolithic people were strongly connected to the sea with coastal areas vital for subsistence and communication across the water This anthology includes case studies from Scandinavia western Europe and the Baltic area presented by key international researchers Topics addressed include large scale analyses of the archaeological and geological development of coastal areas the exploration of coastal environments with interdisciplinary methods the discussion of the character of coastal settlements and of their possible networks social and economic practices along the coast as well as perceptions and cosmological aspects of coastal areas Together these topics and approaches contribute in an innovative way to the understanding of the complexity of topographically changing coastal areas as both border zones between land and sea and as connecting landscapes Providing novel insights into the study of the Mesolithic as well as coastal areas and landscapes in general the book is an important resource for researchers of the Mesolithic and coastal archaeology Irish Art in the Early Christian Period Françoise Henry,1947 Inishmurray: Archaeological survey and excavations 1997-2000 Jerry O'Sullivan,Tomás Ó Carragáin,2008 On the small island of Inishmurray off the coast of County Sligo is one of the best preserved early medieval church sites in northern Europe Unlike many of the other stone built establishments on Ireland s western littoral this was no hermitage where a handful of ascetics sought refuge from society Inishmurray was a monastery of some significance and around the end of the first millennium its community built a remarkable suite of stations on the islands perimeter that helped to establish it as one of the premier pilgrimage centres in the northwest of the country In this the first detailed study of the site since the 1880s a comprehensive new survey and series of excavations form the basis for a major reassessment of its significance In particular the authors place the satellite monuments firmly in a tradition of ritual practice that is attested to at cities and important monasteries throughout early medieval Christendom This book offers the reader an understanding of how the sacred topography of Inishmurray was experienced both by its resident community of monks and by the pilgrims who journeyed there Book Jacket Subject Index of the Modern Works Added to the British Museum Library ,1968 Subject Index of Modern Books Acquired 1881/1900-.
