The book deals with the cosmos of grief taking it as a separate subject that is studied through its cross section after segmentalization It is done by discussing the human state of affairs that generates tragedy at common levels This exploration is achieved by devising new terminologies and expressions Meanwhile the terms of some other subjects like science arts and music have also been moulded to leave new meanings The discussion on each of the terms varies in detail so whoever reads it may find a sense of association to some sort of similar grief existing in one's life The blend of realistic surrealistic and abstract ideas would invite the reader to think over the serious concerns that somehow damage the soul The working of heart mind intentions and actions has been analysed The reader would observe an effort done for revealing the mechanism of subconsciousness but without setting anyone a hero or a villain Man is criticised for some aspects related to the shades of social ethical interpersonal and to some extent religious practices Aristotle once suggested that tragedy is possible without characters but not without action This book coincidentally tries to achieve this because actions are found as characters causing tragedy simultaneously arousing pity and fear As the name suggests the subject of grief has been dissected for an examination through autopsy The book resembles a dictionary in its presentation for the conduction of concepts but without respecting the order of the entries The Anatomy of Bereavement Beverley Raphael,1984 The Anatomy of Grieving Adam Brett Storey,Open University (GB),1999 The Anatomy of Grief Lisa Lembeck Roberts,2010-12

we took back to life I know you cannot follow that same path but am hoping my experiences will help you to see that there is a way back I am also hoping to shorten the time you spend in the grip of grief by teaching you how to open your mind and follow your heart

The Anatomy of Regret Susan Kavalier-Adler, 2018-04-17 Anatomy of Regret has a highly clinical focus with cases that illustrate how critical psychic change can emerge from the mourning of the grief of psychic regret This book highlights the developmental achievement of owning the guilt of aggression and of tolerating insight into the losses one had produced The author uses the term psychic regret to capture the essence of the process of facing regret consciously This is in contrast to the split off and persecutory dynamics of unconscious guilt Unconscious guilt exposes itself through visceral and cognitive impingements which are related to internal world enactments and it relies on unconscious avoidance of the pain and loss involved in facing psychic regret The author's theory of developmental mourning is illustrated in this book through in depth lively clinical processes cases and vignettes
