within the basic statute Accordingly with the passage of time no one can rely on these statements as absolute until and unless a check has been made to see whether the law may have been changed substantially or specifically Furthermore these are broad general principles only and countless subprinciples and detailed rules are not included Only by evaluation of specific fact situations in the light of current principles and with the aid of expert advice would a person be in a position to know definitely where the proposed conduct may fit under the statute No basic primer or text can constitute legal advice in particular fact situations This effort to improve basic education about the statute should not be considered as such Many areas of the statute remain untested Legal advisers and other experts can find the total body of Board law reported in other Agency publications One other caution This material does not deal with questions arising under other labor laws but only with the National Labor Relations Act Laws administered by other Government agencies such as the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 the Employee Retirement Income Security Act the Occupational Safety and Health Act the Railway Labor Act the Fair Labor Standards Walsh Healey and Davis Bacon Acts Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 Americans with Disabilities Act the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act and the Veterans Preference Act are not treated herein A guide to the Federal Service Labor-Management Relations Program United States.
