Caribbean Economic Development The First:

Caribbean Economic Development Stanley Lalta, Marie Freckleton, 1993 A collection of essays by Caribbean scholars on the development experience of the English speaking Caribbean countries with an emphasis on policy oriented analyses and alternative development strategies Explores such issues as import substitution regional integration self reliance and State led development and structural adjustment Handbook of Latin American Studies v 57 Patterns of Caribbean Development Jay Mandle, 2010-11-26 First published in 1982 this study attempts to put contemporary Caribbean development into historical perspective By first constructing a Marxist framework for the study of development Jay Mandle assesses the reasons why the region emerged underdeveloped and evaluates post world war two efforts to overcome the legacy of poverty through a strategy of industrialization through invitation Identifying the reasons why a Marxist framework yielded results which were unsatisfactory the author then explores the requirements which must be met for a more reliable study of the Caribbean s economic development Case studies of Cuba Jamaica Guyana Trinidad and Tobago examine the extent to which these requirements have been met Development in Suspense Norman Girvan, George L. Beckford, 1989 Economic Development of Caricom Winston H. Griffith, 2021-10-12 The early pioneers of development attributed the poor economic and social conditions in less developed nations to cultural and environmental elements Some argued that their small size was also a contributing element In the latter decades of the twentieth century proponents of the neoclassical counterrevolution shifted the focus to the dirigiste policies of governments Taking a heterodox approach however this study argues that the persistent low level of development in CARICOM nations is due to their being utilized as global agricultural and manufacturing production platforms their enduring colonial economic and social structures that have slowed down economic transformation the negative attitudes of classes the anti development policies of some governments and since the human element provides the motor forces that ultimately drive development their failure to accumulate an adequate pool of knowledge skills that are now dominating production processes in the new global economy Negotiating Economic Development Laurie Kroshus Medina, 2022-07-12 The citrus industry in Belize could be said to exist primarily to satisfy the needs of people in other countries A business that is highly dependent on global markets and the geopolitics of international trade it comprises some 500 farmers many hundreds of wage laborers and two processing companies that produce frozen juice concentrate for export This new study examines how those farmers laborers and companies define and pursue shared interests and how they respond differently to the impact of national development strategies and global economic and political forces Laurie Kroshus Medina analyzes the development of the citrus industry in Belize over fifteen years to explore the relationship between the production of collective identities and the negotiation of development policies at the interface of global and local processes She shows how citrus farmers and workers processing companies and politicians compete to construct shared identities how they mobilize collective actors and how their collective action shapes the goals policies and practices associated with development Taking an ethnographic approach Medina describes how the Belizean citrus industry responds to cycles of boom and bust and the implications of such cycles for workers and growers She offers a close look at the major actors workers union members small and large growers and politicians as they respond to global changes in the citrus industry Her analysis is made more compelling through an account of two open struggles in the industry over the formation of a rival union and the attempt to buy the processing company owned by the multinational corporation Nestl She also includes a discussion of the impact of NAFTA on the industry Medina s research demonstrates how collective agency in Belize has pushed the citrus industry s development in directions that simultaneously conform to and diverge from the trajectories laid out by foreign agencies Negotiating Economic Development provides a bridge from old to new studies of Latin American social movements as it offers key insights into competing forms of identity for a wide range of social scientists concerned with the human and social aspects of development issues and globalization

Persistent Underdevelopment Jay Mandle, 2010-11-26 First published in 1996 this insightful and informative text examines the post emancipation and recent economic history of the Commonwealth Caribbean Jay R Mandle offers an explanation of the region s continuing underdevelopment Through the use of an analytical framework derived from the works of Marx and Kuznets the book focuses attention on technological change as the driving force behind economic modernization Persistent Underdevelopment begins by exploring how plantation agriculture had a limiting effect on industrial growth Ultimately plantation dominance receded technological stagnation continued however and under British colonial policy the Caribbean failed to modernise The post World War II era brought new efforts at modernisation through the economic policies of the left regimes of Manley Burnham and Bishop The concluding chapters point the way to policies that would enable the Caribbean to escape its current poverty and become an effective participant in world markets finally achieving the goal of modern economic development
