Kamugisha, 2016-04-08 Caribbean Popular Culture Power Politics and Performance examines the Caribbean popular an idea that has been an important and contested terrain for exploring the dynamic and oftentimes subversive cultural expressions of the region The Caribbean popular arts whether embodied in the hybrid musical genres or vernacular performance and festival traditions have historically provided a space for social and political critique the performance of visibility and also articulations of a temporal emancipatory ethos with its attendant acquisition of power and status Beyond the spaces of their local regional enactments and the social realities out of which they emerged and continue to circulate Caribbean popular culture has over time contributed to contemporary understandings of global and diasporic cultures and at the same time the dynamics of inter cultural encounters The terrain of the popular has been a generative site for the study of Caribbean societies and has produced enduring theoretical postulations that have been pivotal to the shaping of the intellectual production on the Caribbean It is also the most powerful force that socializes contemporary Caribbean citizens into an understanding of their identities the limits of their citizenship and the meaning of their worlds Pop Culture in Latin

Rt-Caribbean Middlebrow Z B. Edmondson, 2011-02-23 Rihanna Hilary Beckles, Heather D. Russell, 2015 Rihanna is arguably the most commercially successful Caribbean artist in history She is Barbadian and has been unwavering in publicly articulating her national and regional belonging Still there have been varied responses to Rihanna's ascendancy among both Barbadians and the wider Caribbean community The responses reveal as much about our own national and regional anxieties as they do about the artist herself The boundary transgressing cultural icon Rihanna is subject to anxieties about her body language and latitude from her global audiences as well however the essays in this collection purposely seek to de-centre the dominance of the Euro American gaze focusing instead on considerations of the Caribbean artist and her oeuvre from a Caribbean postcolonial corpus of academic inquiry This collection brings together US and Caribbean based scholars to discuss issues of class gender sexuality race culture and economy Using the concept of diasporic citizenship as a theoretical frame the authors intervene in current questions of national and transnational circuits of exchange as they pertain to the commoditization and movement of culture knowledge values and identity The contributors approach the subjects of Rihanna globalization gender and sexuality commerce transnationalism Caribbean regionalism and Barbadian national identity and development from different disciplinary and at times radically divergent perspectives At the same time they collectively work through the limitations possibilities and promise of our best Caribbean imaginings
