Eyes Ralph Boirum,2024-07-24 The inspiring true story of an infantryman in the jungles the Mekong Delta and during the Tet Offensive in Vietnam Note from the Author Vietnam was a tough unpopular war It was fought by tough men and women who by the very act of being there themselves became unpopular Returning home to the States after a year of monumental effort and personal sacrifice a GI was often scorned even spat upon The jubilant welcome experienced by their fathers returning from Europe and the Pacific twenty years previously was nowhere to be seen No one wanted to hear about Vietnam and relatively few veterans wrote about their experiences Most did their best just to forget and get along with their lives Only now more than 50 years later is there an acceptance and appreciation of the sacrifice and valor shown by so many

Unfortunately many are no longer with us Lives were shortened by the effects of battle or exposure to chemicals or just an excess of years such that many veterans never lived long enough to begin to feel the appreciation they deserve By describing his own war I hope some of the remaining vets can relive their own experiences and appreciate themselves for their effort and sacrifice The F 100 streaked in low barely a couple hundred feet over the scrubby treetops Its 20mm cannon rounds tearing up the brush throwing earth vegetation into the air with loud buzzing popping thunder As he neared the low point in his shallow dive two dark oblong objects fell from his wings Three bladed slats immediately deployed from the trailing end of each object slowing them to allow the plane to get out of blast range of the Mark 82 Snake Eye 500 pound bombs Down someone yelled unnecessarily as this was the third bombing run in as many minutes by the two jets providing our air support I flattened out behind the low dike in the stubble of the dry rice paddy and closed my eyes against the dust that would be raised by the exploding bombs I was already soaked with sweat and filthy as the warm dry rice paddy dirt stuck to every damp surface I momentarily forgot the itching that comes with sweat filth and a week in the same dirty clothes Incredibly loud almost simultaneous crumps and violent shocks that took the breath away followed by the buzz of shrapnel flying overhead announced the bombs detonations Cariboo Cowboy Harry Marriott,1966 Flying ,1965 Makúk John

Sutton Lutz,2009-01-01 John Lutz traces Aboriginal people s involvement in the new economy and their displacement from it from the arrival of the first Europeans to the 1970s Drawing on an extensive array of oral histories manuscripts newspaper accounts biographies and statistical analysis Lutz shows that Aboriginal people flocked to the workforce and prospered in the late nineteenth century He argues that the roots of today s widespread unemployment and welfare dependency date only from the 1950s when deliberate and inadvertent policy choices what Lutz terms the white problem drove Aboriginal people out of the capitalist wage and subsistence economies offering them welfare as compensation Canadian Aviation ,1970
