Eco Labelling Internat Trade:

Eco-Labeling and International Trade Veena Jha, Rene Vossenaar, Simonetta Zarrilli, 1997-06-12 Eco labelling is an increasingly popular way of meeting consumer s demands for environmental information about the products they purchase The first book on this important subject collects contributions from the academic policy making and commercial spheres to look at the conceptual and practical issues and to discuss how eco labelling can be made effective and equitable and must avoid distorting international trade to the detriment of developing countries Ecolabelling and International Trade Veena Jha, 1993 Eco-labelling and International Trade Simonetta Zarrilli, 1997 Eco-labelling and International Trade Wendy Hollingsworth, 2003 Eco labelling is a process used to inform the consumer of the environmental characteristics of a good or service To date over thirty countries have passed legislation and instituted eco labelling programmes and there are presently more than sixty eco labels in existence globally This issue of Trade Hot Topics examines the eco labelling and international trade debate and its impact on trade policies market access and standard setting policies of relevance to developing countries Product Certification and Ecolabelling for Fisheries Sustainability Cathy A. Roheim, Cathy R. Wessells, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2001-01-01 This document considers product certification and ecolabelling schemes used for fish and fishery products It discusses the characteristics and theoretical foundations of these programmes the links to international trade law and other institutional aspects Labelling Strategies in Environmental Policy Mario Teisl, 2017-11-30 Eco labelling programmes have been in existence for many years but their recent growth now extends to many products and services The academic literature has grown in response and there have been several theoretical and empirical advances This volume presents the best of previously published research on the design and effects of eco labelling programmes Whilst concentrating on the economic literature the articles also approach the topic from a psychological sociological and political point of view Part One focuses on a range of theoretical developments Part Two on empirical measurements of the effectiveness of eco labelling Part Three on the factors that influence the success and design of eco labelling programmes and Part Four on the effects of eco labelling on international trade and development

Principles of International Environmental Law Philippe Sands, 2003-10-09 This second edition of Philippe Sand s leading textbook on international environmental law provides a clear and authoritative introduction to the subject revised to December 2002 It considers relevant new topics including the Kyoto Protocol genetically modified organisms oil pollution chemicals etc and will remain the most comprehensive account of the principles and rules relating to environmental protection and the conservation of natural resources In addition to the key material from the 1992 Rio Declaration and subsequent developments Sands also covers topics including the legal and institutional framework the field s historic development and standards for general application This will continue to be an invaluable resource for both students and practitioners alike Ecolabelling and Fisheries Management ,2004 Environmental Labelling Programmes Arthur

Edmond Appleton,1997 The importance of environmental labelling is magnified by the possible implications of schemes for trade relations economic development and the environment This work examines the economic rationale behind environmental labelling and the policy issues associated with labelling schemes WTO Rüdiger Wolfrum,Peter-Tobias Stoll,Anja Seibert-Fohr,2007 This volume gives a detailed account of the parameters for technical standards and measures seeking to protect health and environment Product and Raw Material Eco-labeling Jim Salzman,1998 Labelling Strategies in Environmental Policy Mario Teisl,2017-11-30 Eco labelling programmes have been in existence for many years but their recent growth now extends to many products and services The academic literature has grown in response and there have been several theoretical and empirical advances This volume presents the best of previously published research on the design and effects of eco labelling programmes Whilst concentrating on the economic literature the articles also approach the topic from a psychological sociological and political point of view Part One focuses on a range of theoretical developments Part Two on empirical measurements of the effectiveness of eco labelling Part Three on the factors that influence the success and design of eco labelling programmes and Part Four on the effects of eco labelling on international trade and development Environmental Labelling Programmes Arthur Edmond Appleton,1997 The importance of environmental labelling is magnified by the possible implications of schemes for trade relations economic development and the environment This work examines the economic rationale behind environmental labelling and the policy issues associated with labelling schemes Report on the Workshop on Eco-labelling and International Trade United Nations Conference on Trade and Development,1994 Eco-labels and International Trade in Textiles Wesley Nimon,1999 Eco-labelling in International Trade Law Esther Kremer,2007 Capacity Building for Environmental Law in the Asian and Pacific Region Donna G. Craig,Nicholas A. Robinson,Kheng Lian Koh,2003 National sectoral and international approaches to environmental law education are integrated in this comprehensive resource on environmental law in Asian and Pacific countries A broader definition of sustainable development that incorporates social cultural and economic dimensions facilitates consideration of social justice and equity in environmental law Specific environments including freshwater ecosystems forests and intercoastal zones are discussed in this volume including information on biological diversity climate change and sustainable development International Environmental Law and Policy Edith Brown Weiss,1998 This dynamic casebook takes an interdisciplinary approach in an analytical framework that can be applied to any international environmental legal problem By studying both legal and non legal issues students gain a full and meaningful understanding of this global problem and its legal solutions International Environmental Law and Policy is the perfect vehicle for tackling the challenges of international environmental law from a global perspective International Environmental Law and Policy leads students from fundamental issues to sophisticated applications in four main parts the Nature of International Environmental Issues Basic Concepts and Context explores non legal issues such as global population intergenerational
