Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by applying knowledge and inventing things. After "brain" work, a local science team will create a solution to a problem by using evidence to make or improve solutions that have a positive impact. Understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, is the first step in finding an effective solution.

Designing solutions begins by considering various conditions, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Community members from a particular local challenge, problem, or the impact of a local science team's solution. For example, creating a solution for a water filter that is safe and easy to use, cannot influence the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, determining how it works, what conditions affected it, and any compromises that have already been and should involve on the way. Communication, using simple words, and reflecting on the results of the solution are important steps. The process of creating a solution that is safe, healthy, and encourages responsible decision-making and team communication.
