Fine, Lea Ypi, 2016-01-29 Written by an international team of leading political and legal theory scholars whose writings have contributed to shaping the field Migration in Political Theory presents seminal new work on the ethics of movement and membership The volume addresses challenging and under researched themes on the subject of migration It debates the question of whether we ought to recognize a human right to immigrate and whether it might be legitimate to restrict emigration The authors critically examine criteria for selecting would be migrants and for acquiring citizenship They discuss tensions between the claims of immigrants and existing residents and tackle questions of migrant worker exploitation and responsibility for refugees The book illustrates the importance of drawing on the tools of political theory to clarify criticize and challenge the current terms of the migration debate

Repositioning North American Migration History Marc S. Rodriguez, 2004 An in depth look at trends in North American internal migration This volume gathers established and new scholars working on North American immigration transmigration internal migration and citizenship whose work analyzes the development of migrant and state level institutions as well as migrant networks With contemporary migration research most often focused on the development of transnational communities and the ways international migrants maintain relationships with their sending region that sustain the circular flow of people ideas and traditions across national boundaries it is useful to compare these to similar patterns evident within the terrain of internal migration To date however international and internal migration studies have unfolded in relative isolation from one another with each operating within these distinct fields of expertise rather than across them Although there has been some important linking there has not been a recent major consideration of human migration that works across and within the various borders of the North American continent Thus the volume presents a variety of chapters that seek to consider human migration in comparative perspective across the internal international divide Marc S Rodriguez is Assistant Professor of History at Princeton University Donna R Gabbaccia is the Mellon Professor of History at the University of Pittsburgh James R Grossman is the Vice President of Research and Education at the Newberry Library Chicago Contributors Josef Barton Wallace Best Donna Gabbaccia James Gregory Tobias Higbie Mae Ngai Walter Nugent Annelise Orleck Kunal Parker Kimberly Phillips Bruno Ramirez Marc Rodriguez Repositioning North American Migration History is a volume in Studies in Comparative History sponsored by Princeton University's Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies

Citizenship in a Fragile World Bernard P. Dauenhauer, 1996-07-11 Traditional conceptions of citizenship have dealt almost exclusively with political life within one state But the internationalization of so much economic cultural and political life today presents new opportunities and problems including the potential to extinguish human life Taking these new features as a point of departure Dauenhauer exposes the flaws in standard communitarian and liberal democratic theory focusing on the work of Charles Taylor John Rawls and Jürgen Habermas He articulates a concept of complex citizenship that recognizes citizens responsibilities beyond borders and shows its fruitfulness for educating children and dealing with foreign states and their peoples
