ABSTRACT

Sustainable development, which benefits everyone in a country or society, is greatly aided by the contributions of women. If a mother knows how to care for her daughter, she can watch her blossom into a beautiful, long-lasting flower. There have been relatively few efforts to promote women's empowerment through early childhood education, such as expanding educational opportunities or offering financial incentives. It's crucial for women to realise that their own conceptions of what it means to be an empowered person are limiting their own potential. An educated woman is more likely to be an active participant in society and a leader in her field. The purpose of this research is to examine how different demographics of adolescent girls view themselves in relation to Kanyashree Prakalpa. This includes differences in age, location, and social status. The Adolescent Girls' Attitude towards Education Scale is a self-developed measure used to collect data from 926 casually selected single teen-age girl pupils from higher secondary and secondary schools in the Medinipur division West Bengal. Girls from grades 8 through 12 are represented in the data, which includes 85.9 percent of Kanyashree Prakalpa recipients and 14.1 percent of those who are not, 50.1 out of a hundred of students from urban zones and 49.9 % from rural zones, 38.1 percent of students from the general category, 29.6 percent from the other backward classes, 22.8 % from the SC category, and 9.3 % from the ST category (17 plus years). Data tabulation is done in MS-Excel 2007, and statistical analysis (t-tests, ANOVAs) is performed in SPSS 22.00. No major shifts in KanyashreePrakalpa's sense of self were found to have occurred during the study period. class (and age) recipients, but they're in a stronger position. Only girls' perceptions of themselves are significantly affected by regional differences. Beneficiaries of all caste categories fare better than non-beneficiaries. The investigator arrived at the conclusion that Kanyashree Prakalpa is more than a societal wellbeing programme; it is the future.

KEYWORDS: Self-perception, Attitude, Educational advancement, Conditional cash transfer, Receiver of Kanyashree Prakalpa, Non-receiver of Kanyashree Prakalpa, Teen-age girl pupil, etc.
