

Seminars in Orthodontics

VOL 1, NO 1

MARCH 1995

Introduction

The evolution of orthodontics is proceeding at an accelerated rate. We are now able to offer our patients treatment possibilities and outcomes that were not available in the recent past. We are also in an era of rapidly increasing new scientific data. The rate of technological advancement and sophistication is unprecedented. Equipment and materials that are available for our use are also undergoing change and improvement.

All of these developments impact directly on the clinical orthodontist as diagnostic procedures, treatment modalities, and expected outcomes are evolving and improving. The expectations of our patients are also greater. The rate at which new information is becoming available and the resultant changes in patient management that follow place an increasing burden on the clinical orthodontist who is attempting to keep abreast of all of these innovations. A noted academician, teacher, and clinician recently stated, "Information is the coin of the realm."

The goal of Seminars in Orthodontics will be to synthesize and correlate new information into an easily readable and digestible format. Seminars in Orthodontics, which will be published quarterly, will focus on one topic in each issue. Knowledgeable authors will contribute articles containing current pertinent information on the selected topic. In this manner a single topic will be addressed in-depth from various authors' perspectives in a single issue. Each issue of Seminars in Orthodontics will be the equivalent of a mini-symposium on the topic. Efforts will be made to separate scientifically based information from anecdotal opinion.

Topics already scheduled for publication in Seminars in Orthodontics include "Biomechanics and Appliance Design," guest editor Robert J. Isaacson; "The Relevance of Facial Esthetics to Orthodontics," guest editor Sheldon Peck; "Early Treatment of Malocclusion," guest editor Gregory J. King; "Temporomandibular Joint Dysfunction," guest editor Daniel M. Laskin; and "Orthodontics/Periodontics," guest editor Bjorn U. Zachrisson. Each journal issue will contain articles written by knowledgeable contributing authors.

We are very pleased with this innovative addition to the orthodontic literature and also with the enthusiastic acceptance of the many recognized experts who have agreed to serve on our Editorial Board. Their expertise will guarantee the ongoing excellence of Seminars in Orthodontics. We believe that Seminars in Orthodontics will enhance the readers' information database and provide in a user friendly format essential information for the clinical orthodontist, the academician, and the student of orthodontics.
