Arable Plants A Field Guide:

Arable Plants Phil Wilson, 2004-01-21 This book concentrates on the group of plants showing the steepest decline among British flora over the past 25 years plants that grow among the crops Easy to use format is designed to enable people to take it into the field and to identify these species whether they are a beginner or an expert The text covers the history of and includes practical recommendations for managing the places where these plants still occur 100 plant profiles include key identification features flowering and germination times and differences between similar species Color distribution maps show where these plants have been seen in the past 25 years while the accompanying text indicates their current location

The Changing Status of Arable Habitats in Europe Clive Hurford, Phil Wilson, Jonathan Storkey, 2021-01-29 This edited volume documents the current nature conservation status of arable habitats in Europe Arable farming systems have evolved in the European landscape over more than ten thousand years and now occupy nearly 30% of the European land area They support species that have life cycles closely synchronised with traditional cereal growing many of which have experienced massive declines throughout Europe For example in Britain of the 100 plant species exhibiting the greatest declines in the latter half of the 20th century 47 were typical of arable land Despite this the habitat and many of the species associated with it remains unprotected across much of Europe The 22 chapters cover a range of topics including Regional accounts describing the impact of changing agricultural practices on the arable flora The results of research and surveillance projects on the soil organisms bryophyte flora invertebrate fauna and pollinators of arable habitats The potential for designing multifunctional and resilient agricultural landscapes The use of ex situ conservation to aid the reintroduction of rare arable plants Case studies illustrating how changing agricultural practices have impacted on bird populations in Europe The roles of remote sensing in monitoring agricultural systems How agri environment schemes can help restore the biodiversity in arable habitats and A look forward at ways to help ensure the future security of the species associated with arable habitats It is clear that the biodiversity of arable land throughout Europe has undergone major changes particularly during the second half of the 20th century and that these changes are continuing into the 21st century We need to develop a deeper appreciation of farmland wildlife and its integration into farming systems to ensure its future security in a world where value is increasingly expressed in terms of material profit This book is particularly relevant to practitioners policy makers and managers working in the fields of nature conservation agri environment schemes and land management and to researchers working in the fields of conservation biology terrestrial ecology nature conservation applied ecology biodiversity agriculture agricultural ethics and environmental studies

Introduction to Wildlife Conservation in Farming Stephen Burchett, Sarah Burchett, 2011-07-20 This book provides an invaluable comprehensive and practical introduction to conservation issues associated with current farming practice Representing both industry and conservation as an integrated and holistic system it explores conservation issues within every farming discipline from arable and horticulture to grasslands woodlands aquatic and coastal farming and will include an assessment of the impact of global warming The book includes relevant case studies and international real world examples focusing on applied management and not just ecological facts theories and principles The carefully structured book begins by introducing the overall subject including some statistics on current farming activities giving a brief outlook for the future of farming systems in relation to conservation Each subsequent chapter will have its own introduction setting the commercial context and conservation value of an example farm and will progress with a series of case studies that will include the following elements site assessment species list soils management options and a habitat management plan A summary section will draw together the common themes of the chapter and develop a lead in to subsequent chapters It will provide students with an informed appreciation of current practice whilst raising questions about the development of conservation in farming in the future

Farmland Conservation Lynn V. Dicks, Joscelyne E. Ashpole, Juliana Dänhardt, Katy James, Annelie M. Jönsson, Nicola Randall, David A. Showler, Rebecca K. Smith, Susan Turpie, David R. Williams, William J. Sutherland, 2014-08-25 This synopsis covers evidence for the effects of conservation interventions for native farmland wildlife It is restricted to evidence captured on the website www.conservationevidence.com It includes papers published in the journal Conservation Evidence evidence summarized on our database and systematic reviews collated by the Collaboration for Environmental Evidence It is the third volume in the series Synopses of Conservation Evidence Evidence was collected from all European countries west of Russia but not those south of France Switzerland Austria Hungary and Romania A list of interventions to conserve wildlife on farmland was developed collaboratively by a team of thirteen experts A number of interventions that are not currently agri environment options were added during this process such as Provide nest boxes for bees solitary or bumblebees and Implement food labelling schemes relating to biodiversity friendly farming Interventions relating to the creation or management of habitats not considered commercial farmland such as lowland heath salt marsh and farm woodland were removed The list of interventions was organized into categories based on the International Union for the Conservation of Nature IUCN classifications of direct threats and conservation actions Interventions that fall under the threat category Agriculture are grouped by farming system with separate sections for interventions that apply to arable or livestock farms or across all farming types
