Bird Migration Eberhard

Gwinner,2012-12-06 E GWINNER The phenomenon of bird migration with its large scale dimensions has attracted the attention of naturalists for centuries Worldwide billions of birds leave their breeding grounds every autumn to migrate to areas with seasonally more favorable conditions Many of these migrants travel only over a few hundred kilometers but others cover distances equivalent to the circumference of the earth Among these long distance migrants are several billion birds that invade Africa every autumn from their West and Central Palearctic breeding areas In the Americas and in Asia the scope of bird migration is of a similar magnitude Just as impressive as the numbers of birds are their achievements They have to cope with the enormous energetic costs of long distance flying particularly while crossing oceans and deserts that do not allow replenishment of depleted fat reserves They have to appropriately time the onset and end of migrations both on a daily and annual basis And finally they have to orient their migratory movements in space to reach their species or population specific wintering and breeding grounds irrespective of the variable climatic conditions along their migratory routes

Human Navigation and Magnetoreception Robin Baker,2017-10-12

Human Navigation and Magnetoreception first published in 1989 was written to draw a line under an academic feud that had enlivened much of the 1980s Now thirty years on a new generation of researchers students and journalists have voiced a need for the book's contents to be made generally available again and this digital 30th Anniversary edition with a new Preface by the author is the result Like all mammals early humans needed to find their way from place to place without becoming lost For many the penalty for poor navigation was death Yet through most of humankind's evolutionary history the only map was in the head and the only compasses in the world around These were provided by the sun moon and stars and something else In 1980 research at Manchester University England led to the claim in the journal Science that during natural navigation humans can use an innate subconscious sense of magnetism The claim was novel to some scientists unjustified and in the years that followed triggered intense and often bitter argument as experiments were criticised improved repeated and extended Even thirty years after first publication Human Navigation and Magnetoreception remains the most complete book ever written on the subject of the human magnetic sense It describes over a decade of research by not only the author and his team at Manchester but also by his various critics and others around the world Although the experiments began on small groups of British students the studies eventually extended to include many ages and nationalities including specialist groups such as orienteers nudists trans equatorial travellers dyslexics and the blind By the time the Manchester and other studies ended thousands of people worldwide had taken part Other mammals horses and mice had also been studied and the results for all were exciting They were also controversial and the arguments they triggered vitriolic Aimed primarily but not only at scientists the book presents detailed experimental evidence in support of its conclusions It demonstrates how the magnetic sense is used alongside sun and star compasses in natural explorations It also demonstrates a close link between magnetoreception and sight and makes inferences for the nature of the magnetic sensor itself Within the book s pages all of the major points of scientific contention are discussed openly and objectively The result is a fascinating account of not only a little researched human sense but also of the hurdles that some new ideas have to clear before they can be accepted Watching Birds James Fisher,2010-11-30 This revised edition of the late James Fisher s much praised Watching Birds is the work of Dr Jim Flegg Director of the British Trust for Ornithology In his Preface Dr Flegg writes It is a daunting task to revise the bird book on which you cut your teeth it is the surest measure of the man who wrote it that what is needed after thirty odd years is an updating and not a sweeping revision Among James Fisher s deservedly popular writings Watching Birds was probably the most read and consulted After several reprints published by Penguin Books he planned to re write it and it is wholly appropriate that the work should now be done by Dr Flegg who like the original author has done much to help arouse and stimulate a widening interest in watching and understanding the life and world of birds It is an indication of that interest today that radio and TV programmes in which Dr Flegg has frequently participated have audiences of millions Such numbers are hardly surprising since few leisure activities offer as effective or as gratifying an antidote to the pressures of modern life as birdwatching and few can be as readily and inexpensively pursued at almost any time anywhere Watching Birds has been an introduction and an item of basic equipment to tens of thousands of birdwatchers in the past and this new and revised edition is assured of an even wider audience Jacket colour photograph by Jim Flegg Cognitive Processes and Spatial Orientation in Animal and Man Paul Ellen,C.
