Black Corona:

Black Corona Steven Gregory, 2011-03-28 In Black Corona Steven Gregory examines political culture and activism in an African American neighborhood in New York City Using historical and ethnographic research he challenges the view that black urban communities are socially disorganized Gregory demonstrates instead how working class and middle class African Americans construct and negotiate complex and deeply historical political identities and institutions through struggles over the built environment and neighborhood quality of life With its emphasis on the lived experiences of African Americans Black Corona provides a fresh and innovative contribution to the study of the dynamic interplay of race class and space in contemporary urban communities It questions the accuracy of the widely used trope of the dysfunctional black ghetto which the author asserts has often been deployed to depoliticize issues of racial and economic inequality in the United States By contrast Gregory argues that the urban experience of African Americans is more diverse than is generally acknowledged and that it is only by attending to the history and politics of black identity and community life that we can come to appreciate this complexity This is the first modern ethnography to focus on black working class and middle class life and politics Unlike books that enumerate the ways in which black communities have been rendered powerless by urban political processes and by changing urban economies Black Corona demonstrates the range of ways in which African Americans continue to organize and struggle for social justice and community empowerment Although it discusses the experiences of one community its implications resonate far more widely Some images inside the book are unavailable due to digital copyright restrictions

Annual Report of Coal Mines, State of Alabama, 1913 Race, Ethnicity, and Place in a Changing America, Third Edition John W. Frazier, Eugene L. Tettey-Fio, Norah F. Henry, 2016-12-29 Uses both historical and contemporary case studies to examine how race and ethnicity affect the places we live work and visit This book examines major Hispanic African and Asian diasporas in the continental United States and Puerto Rico from the nineteenth century to the present with particular attention on the diverse ways in which these immigrant groups have shaped and reshaped American places and landscapes Through both historical and contemporary case studies the contributors examine how race and ethnicity affect the places we live work and visit illustrating along the way the behaviors and concepts that comprise the modern ethnic and racial geography of immigrant and minority groups While primarily addressed to students and scholars in the fields of racial and ethnic geography these case studies will be accessible to anyone interested in race place connections race ethnicity boundaries the development of racialization and the complexity of human settlement patterns and landscapes that make up the United States and Puerto Rico Taken together they show how individuals and culture groups through their ideologies social organization and social institutions reflect both local and regional processes of place making and place remaking that occur within and beyond the continental United States Holstein-Friesian Herd-book Holstein-Friesian Association of America, 1901 The Art Museum Redefined Johanna K. Taylor, 2019-10-04 This book presents a critical analysis of the power and opportunity created in the implementation of community engaged practices within art museums by looking at the networks connecting art museums to community organizations artists and residents The Art Museum Redefined places the interaction of art museums and urban neighbourhoods as the central focus of the study to investigate how museums and artists collaborate with residents and local community groups Rather than defining the community solely from the perspective of a museum looking out at its audience the research examines the larger networks of art organizing and creative activism connected to the museum that are active across the neighbourhood Taylor s research encompasses the grassroots efforts of local groups and their collaboration with museums and other art institutions that are extending their reach outside their physical walls and into the community This focus on social engagement speaks to recent emphasis in cultural policy on cultural equity and inclusion creative place making and community engagement at neighbourhood and city levels and will be of interest to students scholars and policy makers alike
