Children With Specific Learning Difficulties:

Assessing Children with Specific Learning Difficulties Gavin Reid, Gad Elbeheri, John Everatt, 2015-07-16 This comprehensive book provides all the information that practitioners need to know about assessment in relation to their pupils with Specific Learning Difficulties. The why, how, and what of assessment is addressed whilst the link between assessment and intervention is also a key focus. Looking at the full range of Specific Learning Difficulties, this book provides practical guidance on implementing strategies that are tried and tested for use in any classroom whilst also acknowledging that assessment is a process involving other professionals and parents. Addressing issues and topics common in inclusive classrooms around the world, key topics covered include Specific Learning Difficulties in context, Teacher Assessment in literacy, numeracy, and movement, Motor development and coordination, Attention factors in learning, The key issues on learning differences, Self-esteem and emotional literacy, How to enhance skills and the self-sufficiency of teachers. Assessing Children with Specific Learning Difficulties will be an invaluable guide for classroom teachers, learning support departments, psychologists, and other professionals. Children with Specific Learning Difficulties Paula Tansley, John Panckhurst, 1984

Children with Specific Learning Difficulties Jessie Francis-Williams, 2014-05-18 Mental Health and Social Medicine Children with Specific Learning Difficulties: The Effect of Neurodevelopmental Learning Disorders on Children of Normal Intelligence Second Edition focuses on a research into the possibility of early identification of children of normal intelligence but with learning disorders believed to evolve from neurodevelopmental dysfunction. The book first elaborates on a research into the early identification of preschool children likely to have specific learning disorders and helping children before starting formal school. Discussions focus on experiments in helping pre-school children whose deviant rates of development point to possibility of later learning disabilities, children with language disabilities and visuo-spatial and motor disability, rating scales, research design and observations arising from research testing. The manuscript then elaborates on children in school, experiments in teaching children with specific learning difficulties and outlook for the future. Topics include management and education of children with neurodevelopmental learning disorders, dyslexia, and tests which reveal intellectual strengths and weaknesses and provide guides to appropriate teaching methods for children with varying learning difficulties. The publication is a vital source of data for educators and researchers interested in children with specific learning difficulties.

Identifying and Supporting Children with Specific Learning Difficulties Pamela Deponio, Christine Macintyre, 2003-12-16 Many children experience difficulties which impact on their learning at home and school. Some children are considered to have a specific learning difficulty such as dyslexia or dyspraxia, but other children display a range of indicators which cross the boundaries of specific named conditions. If teachers are to offer appropriate support, the authors of this highly practical book argue that they must look beyond the label to assess the whole child. This is an informative book which encourages teachers to consider children as individuals rather than attempting to match them to existing sets of indicators pinpoints the overlap of indicators within different specific learning difficulties considers the process of assessment explains the implications of the children s difficulties offers tried and tested strategies to promote inclusive learning Teachers teaching assistants Special Educational Needs Co ordinators and students undertaking teacher education courses will all find this a refreshingly accessible book

Psychological Relationship of Learning Disabilities and Interventions in Children Shambhavi G, 2022-05-12
INTRODUCTION In the present modern society mastery of basic academic skills reading writing and arithmetic is a necessary pre requisite for success in both school and employment setting and in society at large A large percentage of children suffer from learning disabilities or learning difficulties and therefore do not master or partially master these required academic skills Not surprisingly each one learns differently Most of us have our own learning difficulty to cope with Some people don't do well with numbers others have difficulty in writing Some people feel they have to discuss a new idea before they understand it others need to mull it over in privacy Learning difficulties and learning problems are often the first descriptive terms used when a child begins to have trouble in school In some countries it is used as a synonym for learning disabilities However learning difficulties and learning disabilities are usually distinguished with learning difficulties being a broader term Not all difficulties are learning disabilities Children develop at different rates and sometimes what seems to be a learning disability may resolve as the child matures Importantly children who are language learners are sometimes misidentified as having learning disability as these children are from impoverished backgrounds or with severe problems at home that impact their preparation for school or their behaviour The term learning difficulty has been applied to those children who have significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of their age They are unable to make use of the education facilities available in schools People with learning difficulties can have problems with many every day learning activities Reading spelling and numeracy skills are basic to school achievement Children with specific learning difficulties may show problems in all three areas or only one or two Reading and spelling are closely associated skills and it is rare to find reading disabled children who are not at all handicapped in spelling Most children are likely to be behind in all three areas although there are occasional reports of subgroups showing rather more of one or the other deficit Learning disability LD is a neurologically based processing problem Children with this disability are a heterogeneous group of individuals exhibiting
