Chimpanzee Material Culture William Clement McGrew,1996 The Mind of the Chimpanzee Elizabeth V. Lonsdorf,Stephen R. Ross,Tetsuro Matsuzawa,2010-08-15 Understanding the chimpanzee mind is akin to opening a window onto human consciousness Many of our complex cognitive processes have origins that can be seen in the way that chimpanzees think learn and behave The Mind of the Chimpanzee brings together scores of prominent scientists from around the world to share the most recent research into what goes on inside the mind of our closest living relative Intertwining a range of topics including imitation tool use face recognition culture cooperation and reconciliation with critical commentaries on conservation and welfare the collection aims to understand how chimpanzees learn think and feel so that researchers can not only gain insight into the origins of human cognition but also crystallize collective efforts to protect wild chimpanzee populations and ensure appropriate care in captive settings With a breadth of material on cognition and culture from the lab and the field The Mind of the Chimpanzee is a first rate synthesis of contemporary studies of these fascinating mammals that will appeal to all those interested in animal minds and what we can learn from them

Handbook of Aggressive Behavior Research Cairiona Quin, Scott Tawse, 2009 Aggression is a complex social behaviour with multiple causes In psychology as well as other social and behavioural sciences aggression refers to behaviour between members of the same species that is intended to cause pain or harm Aggression takes a variety of forms among humans and can be physical mental or verbal Aggression should not be confused with assertiveness however although the terms are often used interchangeably There are two broad categories of aggression These include hostile affective or retaliatory aggression and instrumental predatory or goal oriented aggression Empirical research indicates that there is a critical difference between the two both psychologically and physiologically Some research indicates that people with tendencies toward affective aggression have lower IQs than those with tendencies toward predatory aggression If only considering physical aggression males tend to be more aggressive than females This new book gathers the latest research from around the world in this field

The Adapted Mind Jerome H. Barkow, Leda Cosmides, John Tooby, 1992

Although researchers have long been aware that the species typical architecture of the human mind is the product of our evolutionary history it has only been in the last three decades that advances in such fields as evolutionary biology cognitive psychology and paleoanthropology have made the fact of our evolution illuminating Converging findings from a variety of disciplines are leading to the emergence of a fundamentally new view of the human mind and with it a new framework for the behavioral and social sciences First with the advent of the cognitive revolution human nature can finally be defined precisely as the set of universal species typical information processing programs that operate beneath the surface of expressed cultural variability Second this collection of cognitive programs evolved in the Pleistocene to solve the adaptive problems regularly faced by our hunter gatherer ancestors problems such as mate selection language acquisition co operation and sexual infidelity Consequently the traditional view of the mind as a general purpose computer tabula rasa or passive recipient of culture is being replaced by the view that the mind resembles an intricate network of functionally specialized computers each of which imposes contentful structure on human mental organization and culture

The Adapted Mind explores this new approach evolutionary psychology and its implications for a new view of culture
