China And Christianity Historical And Future Encounters:

China and Christianity James D. Whitehead, Yu-ming Shaw, N. J. Girardot, 1979 Christian Heretics in Late Imperial China Lars Peter Laamann, 2013-05-13 Following the prohibition of missionary activity after 1724 China's Christians were effectively cut off from all foreign theological guidance. The ensuing isolation forced China's Christian communities to become self-reliant in perpetuating the basic principles of their faith. Left to their own devices, the missionary seed developed into a panoply of indigenous traditions with Christian ancestry as the common denominator. Christianity thus underwent the same process of inculturation as previous religious traditions in China such as Buddhism and Judaism. As the guardian of orthodox morality, the prosecuting state sought to exercise all pervading control over popular thoughts and social functions. Filling the gap within the discourse of Christianity in China and also as part of the wider analysis of religion in late Imperial China, this study presents the campaigns against Christians during this period as part and parcel of the campaign against heresy and heretical movements in general. Reading Christian Scriptures in China Chloe Starr, 2008-04-02 This volume sets out to examine how Christian scriptures have been read within a Chinese reading tradition and to assess what questions such readings pose for both theologians and Chinese studies specialists. The absence to date of publications on the topic and the scattered nature of such research and of scholars in the field makes this an important contribution to debate. The volume gathers essays from Biblical studies experts together with theologians and Chinese text scholars to discuss the interdisciplinary questions raised. Essays from mainland Taiwanese and diasporic Chinese scholars ensure that a range of opinions including those reflecting fault lines between academic and confessional positions are presented. Within the four sections of the volume several papers discuss and correct the current lineage of historical readings while others study the historical impact of the Bible in Chinese society. Four essays give contextual or cross-cultural readings with a focus on individual exegetes mainly from the early twentieth century. The power of performance is raised in two essays: one comparative paper on Christian and Buddhist scriptures from the Qing dynasty and one on the singing of psalms in modern day Taiwan and Macao. Moral questions preoccupy others including the challenges that early Chinese converts found in Biblical laws or Christian guidance on concubinage and extrinsic readings of the Sermon on the Mount. Protestant Missionaries in China Jonathan A. Seitz, 2024-03-15 With a focus on Robert Morrison, Protestant Missionaries in China evaluates the role of nineteenth-century British missionaries in the early development of the cross-cultural relationship between China and the English-speaking world. As one of the first generations of British Protestant missionaries, Robert Morrison went to China in 1807 with the goal of evangelizing the country. His mission pushed him into deeper engagement with Chinese language and culture, and the exchange flowed both ways as Morrison, a working-class man whose firsthand experiences made him an accidental expert, brought depictions of China back to eager British audiences. Author Jonathan A. Seitz proposes that despite the limitations imposed by the orientalist impulse of the era, Morrison and his fellow missionaries were instrumental in creating a new map of cross cultural engagement that would evolve ultimately into modern sinology

Engaging and well researched Protestant Missionaries in China explores the impact of Morrison and his contemporaries on early sinology mission work and Chinese Christianity during the three decades before the start of the Opium Wars The Changing Role of the British Protestant Missionaries in China, 1945-1952 Oi Ki Ling,1999 This book focuses on the British Protestant missionaries in China in the period from 1945 to 1952 It captures the complexity and contradictions between the missionaries own perception of their role and Chinese reality It also examines the missionaries perception of the nature of Communism and their evaluation of the future prospects under Communist rule This study offers a stimulating reflection on the missionaries strategies for propagating the Christian faith their priorities and theological as well as cultural assumptions with regard to mission and politics mission and culture and mission church relations during the transition from Guomindang to Communist rule In general terms it provides an insight into the idealism and frustrations of missionaries as they wrestled with the changing political context in China
