Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by applying knowledge and inventing things. Often "solved" with a local "fix" such as water recycling or waste management, using science to make or improve solutions can have a positive impact. Understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, is the first step in finding an effective resolution.

Designing solutions becomes considering various constraints, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Community members have part of a solution right from the start, and the process can be improved by using their knowledge and skills. For example, creating a solution for a water filter may affect its cost and ease of use, which influenced the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, determining how it works, what constraints affected it, and any compromises that have already been or should be made on the way. Communication, using design models, and reflecting on the results of the solution are important steps. The process can be improved by using their knowledge and skills. For example, creating a solution for a water filter may affect its cost and ease of use, which influenced the effectiveness of the solution.
