When multiple forces act on an object, they combine to produce a net force, which determines whether the object speeds up, slows down, or changes direction. Understanding how forces act together is essential to explaining various phenomena, from a ball's path during a baseball game to a rocket's trajectory in space. Newton's second law of motion states that the acceleration of an object is directly proportional to the net force acting on it and inversely proportional to its mass. This means that if the net force increases, the acceleration increases proportionally, but if the mass also increases, the acceleration will decrease. For example, pushing a heavy box with a small force will result in a small acceleration, while pushing a lighter box with the same force will result in a larger acceleration. Friction is a force that opposes motion between two surfaces in contact. It acts in the opposite direction of the object's motion, slowing it down or preventing it from moving at all. Friction is caused by the roughness of surfaces and the molecular forces between them. Without friction, objects would slide indefinitely on surfaces, and it would be impossible to walk or drive.  Answer the questions that follow. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> What does Newton's second law of motion state? <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Acceleration is directly proportional to force and inversely proportional to mass.
